WASHINGTON, March 4.—(UP)—The greatest pageant in American history passed along historic Pennsylvania avenue today before a quarter of a million people assembled to honor Herbert Hoover, the thirty-first president of the United States.

An overcast sky and chill day, which developed a light rain, failed to mar the brilliant spectacle or lessen the ardor of the crowds.

A glittering, democratic panoply—a cross-section of American life—rolled for more than two hours along the nation's famous parade ground in tribute to the once obscure farm boy elevated to the most powerful position in the world and to an American born amidst Indian tribesmen only to rise to the second highest office of the land.

"Hail to the Chief" blared the bands. Deafening cheers rolling into crashing crescendo swept along the lanes of humanity, while overhead the drone of scores of aircraft motors played an awesome accompaniment for the marchers two thousand feet below.

After taking the oath of office and now clothed in the mantle of the highest office of the land, President Hoover, accompanied in his automobile by Mrs. Hoover, rode back to the White House with the same escort that surrounded him and Mr. Coolidge, now a private citizen, in the ride from the White House to the capital a short while earlier. Cheers thundered along the entire length of the famous way.

Following the president's automobile was that of the new vice president, Charles Curtis, sprung from royal Indian, French and Anglo-Saxon blood, at whose side sat his sister, Mrs. Gann.

Dignitaries rode.

Then followed 14 other cars carrying the congressional and citizens' inaugural committee, military and naval aides and physicians to the new president, members of the cabinet, and his wives, the chief justice who had just administered the oath of office to President Hoover—and Mrs. Taft, the speaker of the house and Mrs. Longworth, Senator Moses, president pro tem of the senate, and Mrs. Moses, and a delegation of the Grand Army of the Republic, old timers of the Cleveland inauguration.

A crack troop that has had the honor of the same mission in the past two inaugurations, the second squad of the Third cavalry, provided the honor escort to the presidential party.

As President Hoover rode almost constantly lifting his hat and smiling to the crowds, and Mrs. Hoover waved her handkerchief, he thought of other climes and other spectacles where he had been a witness or recipient of similar honors.

70th Congress Ends Its Work And Adjourns

By HERBERT LITTLE
WASHINGTON, March 4.—(UP)—The 70th congress closed its life with two crowded hours of farewells, with legislative business mingling with affectionate leave taking and cheerful preparations for a new administration.

Prepared to die at noon, the house met at 10 a. m. and the senate at 11. The house session was principally devoted to farewell speeches, no important business being taken up. The White House has kept well up with its business schedule, and decided an hour before noon that it was ready to adjourn.

In the senate the proceedings were broadcast for the first time by radio, microphones being scattered wholesale over the chamber.

TAKES OATH OF OFFICE THIS NOON

Swears to Uphold Constitution of Land; Asks Citizens to Enforce Laws

WILL PROBE DRY ACT

Continuance of Economy In Public Expenditure Is Promised By Executive

By PAUL R. MALLON
WASHINGTON, March 4.—(UP)—A boy who first saw daylight in a humble Iowa house assumed the nation's most powerful office today when Herbert Hoover became America's thirty-first president.

The new president took the oath of office with a plea for law observance, stressing particularly enforcement of the prohibition amendment.

Facing thousands of his fellow citizens who came to do him honor, Mr. Hoover was sworn in by Chief Justice Taft of the U. S. supreme court and up to that moment the only living ex-president of the United States.

President Hoover swore to uphold the constitution of the land over which his illustrious predecessors—Washington, Jefferson, Lincoln and Wilson—have presided while standing under the shadow of the capitol dome.

Although the elements conspired to give the 31st president a dark greeting, the ovation he received from thousands of massed citizens standing below him more than compensated for nature's sullen welcome.

In a clear voice which radio experts believed would be heard around the world, Mr. Hoover pointed out the danger of our times is disobedience of the law, not only the prohibition law but all laws. He promised to appoint a national commission for a searching investigation of the whole structure of federal jurisprudence, "to include the method of enforcement of the 18th amendment and the cases of abuse under it."

The new president pleaded with citizens to help him enforce the law by observing it. He spoke of the problems of world peace, cooperation of the government with business, education, public health and party responsibilities, announcing he would call a special session of his new congress soon to deal with farm relief and tariff revision.

"It appears to me," he said in summing up his own address, "that the more important further mandates from the recent election were the maintenance of the integrity of the constitution; the vigorous enforcement of the laws; the continuance of economy in public expenditure; the continued regulation of business to prevent domination in the community; the denial of ownership or operation in business by the government in competition with its citizens; the avoidance of policies which would involve us in controversies of foreign nations; the more effective reorganization of the departments of the federal government; the expansion of public works; and the promotion of welfare activities affecting education and the home."

MEXICO AGAIN IS TORN WITH REVOLUTIONS

Former President Calles Is Called to Post of Minister of War

THE REPUBLIC of Mexico called former president Plutarco Elias Calles to the post of minister of war today as the government launched a determined campaign to suppress a carefully planned rebellion which broke out in widely separated parts of the nation yesterday.

Calles, the veteran military leader and strong man of the republic until his retirement from the presidency last December, faced what appeared to be a strongly entrenched revolutionary movement in Vera Cruz, on the southeast coast, and in Sonora, on the northwestern border.

Rebels, under direction of Gen. Francisco R. Manzo and Gov. Fausto Topete of Sonora, claimed that at least 10 other states on the west coast were in sympathy with the uprising.

Military censorship was established in Mexico City and at Vera Cruz, which is in the hands of Gen. Jesus M. Aguirre, chief of military operations, who revolted and seized Jalapa, Orizaba, and Cordoba. Jalapa is capital of the state.

Gen. Manuel Aguilar, acting for Manzo and Topete, seized Nogales, Sonora, capturing the customs house and national bank branch. Manzo was scheduled to reach Nogales today with possibly 10,000 troops.

STATE WATER PLANS BEFORE SOLONS TODAY

Ratification of Six-State Colorado River Pact Is Expected Shortly

BULLETIN
SACRAMENTO, March 4.—(UP)—The California state legislature today ratified the Colorado river compact on a six-state basis, listened to the radio broadcast of President Hoover's inauguration, and continued its preparation for the impeachment of Judge Carlos S. Hardy.

SACRAMENTO, March 4.—Water problems had the right-of-way in the California state legislature today, as the lawmakers swung into the third week of the present session.

Ratification of the six-state Colorado river compact, transfer of San Francisco harbor control from the state to the city, and flood control features of the American, Sacramento and San Joaquin river projects were the leading water issues ready for action.

Governor Young has virtually promised Governor George H. Dern of Utah that the California legislature will ratify the Colorado treaty on a six-state basis. It has (Continued On Page 2.)

TEN DIE FROM LIQUOR

PEORIA, Ill., March 4.—(UP)—Three more persons died of poison liquor today, bringing to 10 the death toll taken here over the weekend. Two others were near death in a hospital, and scores in the community were reported to be violently ill.

The latest victims were Charles Holland and Harold Heitler, of Washington, Ill., and Edward Boldwin, of Peoria.

JACK FISHER, HERO OF WORLD WAR, IS LAID TO REST TODAY AS TAPS SOUNDED AT GRAVE

By ELEANOR YOUNG ELLIOTT
"SOLDIER rest, thy warfare o'er" was the silent benediction today in the hearts of all who knew and loved Jack Fisher, when hundreds joined the cortege that followed that young hero to his last long rest in the peaceful sward of Fairhaven.

Serving as honorary pall bearers at the service were Harry Edwards, Peter Hiehl, Charles Spurrier, Frank Kelly, Edward Struble and Paul Cassidy, of the D. A. V., while active pall bearers were Loyal K. King, Charles Van Wyk, Remus Epps, Frank Walters, Richard Hawkins and William Murphy, all World War veterans.

After a valiant battle for life and health, Jack Fisher, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob A. Fisher, 501 South Sycamore street, surrendered to the adversary Death, on Friday, March 1. Final rites held for him this morning at 10:30 o'clock in the Winbiger Mission chapel, were attended by hundreds of his comrades in the World War, in addition to hundreds more friends who had been drawn to the funeral by the fitness of his character, his splendid talents, and a warmth of personality that gave something of his own bright, true spirit to all with whom he came in contact.

The calmly beautiful service of the Christian Science church was used, with Dr. W. A. Flood reading the ninety-first Psalm. Other Biblical passages were read, followed by correlative passages from Science and Health. Mary Baker Eddy's own poem, "Shepherd, Lead Me" was sung by Marie Bishop, and the simple service was over, save for the silent passing of the crowd from the little chapel.

Santa Ana Post No. 131, American Legion, of which Mr. Fisher was a member; men of the Disabled American Veterans, who revered him, their commander; members of the 40 and 8, grizzled veterans of the Spanish-American war, and feeble, white-haired men wearing the dark blue of the Grand Army of the Republic, all paid homage to this young hero, and stood with tears in their eyes as (Continued On Page 2.)

ORANGE VICTOR IN ANNEXATION COURT BATTLE

Paves Way For School Bond Election; Property Owners to Protest

ENDING legal complications between Santa Ana and Orange and raising the barrier which has stood in the way of school bond election proceedings in this city, the district court of appeals today decided in favor of the neighboring city in the controversy which has existed for months over territory to the north of this city, which both communities have been claiming as annexed.

The stone wall which has stood before the board of education here and has made it impossible to launch a bond election because of the fact that the region was in dispute, thus has been pushed aside. For months the board of education has thought it unadvisable to take steps along this line because of the legal complications brought about by the dispute.

DISOBEDIENCE OF LAW IS HIT BY NEW CHIEF

Disrespect of 18th Amendment Struck at By Hoover in Address

By THOMAS L. STOKES
United Press Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, March 4.—(UP)—President Hoover took up his duties in the White House today with the conviction that the great need of the hour is a new spirit among the American people which shall not wipe out a growing disobedience of law.

With sweeping and forceful strokes, the new president painted in his inaugural address a dark picture of present conditions, to which disrespect of the 18th amendment and the Volstead act has contributed, declaring that the "most malign" of the dangers facing the country today is "disregard and disobedience of law."

Crime, he declared, is increasing. He advocated reform of the entire judicial system to obtain swift and exact justice. The president surprised his hearers by failing to make any prediction about business conditions, dismissing this subject with a generality in his conclusion that the future of the country "is bright with hope." He may deal in detail with this subject to his message to the special session of congress.

In discussing foreign relations he:

- 1.—Predicted that the present movement to get the United States into the World Court without further senate action would be successful.
- 2.—Offered to aid in further limitation of armaments and expressed the hope that the Kellogg anti-war treaty would pave the way for further steps in this direction.
- 3.—Declared the people of the United States had determined against entrance into the League of Nations.
- 4.—Disclaimed any imperialistic aims by the United States, declaring in regard to Latin-American countries that "we wish only for the maintenance of their independence, the growth of their stability and progress."

His discussion of prohibition and law enforcement attracted principal attention.

GASOLINE TUMBLES TO 11.5 CENTS HERE

Gasoline, which for the last week has been selling for 14.1-2 cents in Santa Ana, tumbled here yesterday to 11.1-2 cents, with some stations selling it at 10.1-2 cents. A few stations here today were getting 12.1-2 cents.

The cut here came when a station on South Main street suddenly decided to cut the price, according to rumor. Other stations quickly fell in line.

Nation Minus President 12 Minutes

CAPITOL, WASHINGTON, March 4.—(UP)—The nation was without a president today for 12 minutes, but no one seemed worried about it.

The program of inaugurating Vice President Charles Curtis before noon fell behind schedule. The clock in the senate chamber was turned back three times in order to satisfy constitution requirements, but it was not until 12:12 p. m. Eastern standard time that Curtis took the oath.

Navel Returns To Double Those Of 1927-28; Belief

M.O.D. REPORTS 150 PER CENT TONNAGE GAIN

Virtually twice as much money will be received by Orange county navel growers for their 1928-29 crop as was received for the 1927-28 crop. It is predicted in the reports of managers of the Mutual Orange Distributors' various Orange county packing houses.

While all pool shipments have been made, returns on some of the late rolling cars have not yet been completed. All figures of shipments agree, however, on an average increase of 150 per cent in tonnage.

Shipments made in December and early January show especially favorable sales prices, with returns that will average $3.50 the hundredweight on the tree.

At the meeting of M. O. D. managers, Saturday, in Redlands, figures were given on the navel crop yet to go and on Florida shipments to move within the next 60 days. No attempt was made to estimate the probable Valencia crop, it being deemed too early to give other than cursory figures. It is agreed, however, that it will be the largest crop ever produced in California.

Optimism Expressed

Optimism on prices to be received for Valencia was expressed by C. P. Earley, general manager of the distributors, despite the extra production and the small size of fruit. He stressed strongly, however, that in order to receive these better returns it is necessary that Valencia growers keep in mind the fact that within the next 60 days, or before May 1, the balance of the navel crop, with 12,000 carloads of Florida oranges and 900 carloads of Florida grapefruit, remained to be shipped.

"If the Valencia grower keeps this in mind," Earley said, "I have no hesitancy in saying that the returns from his crop will be greater than he now expects. The navel sales have proved that merely big production and unwelcome sizes are not in themselves the most serious thing in the world. Citrus sales organizations have succeeded in removing these factors from the minds of the buyers.

What has been of undoubted harm to navel returns lately has been the weather condition in the buying markets. Temperatures of from 15 to 20 degrees below zero are not conducive to sales. Traffic is tied up and business is slow.

"Valencias will not have weather to contend with, unless we should have some summer visitation in the east. Tremendous production and small sizes have been overcome greatly by the navel sales. Proper co-operation by Valencia growers in the orderly picking and shipping of their fruit will pay in greatly increased returns."

Records Smashed
Some interesting figures of comparison were given at the meeting by J. A. Steward, sales manager, and others. Navel shipments so far this year have totaled 20,339 cars from all districts of the state. During the same period in 1927, the previous year of largest production, 14,090 carloads of navels rolled. Between March 1 and May 1, 1927, the markets received 15,224 carloads, of which probably 1500 carloads were early Valencias.

Florida, in the present season, has shipped 20,981 carloads of fruit. In 1927, that state had shipped 18,131 carloads in the same period. Estimates now give 12,000 carloads of Florida oranges to go and 9000 carloads of grapefruit. With approximately 14,000 carloads of navels yet to roll from California, the Florida visible supply means that the markets, this year, will take 35,000 carloads of citrus fruits within the next 60 days.

Orange county M. O. D. managers at the meeting were H. W. Pierce, Anaheim Co-operative Orange association; Thomas Edgington, Edgington Fruit company, Fullerton; W. B. Merchant, Garden Grove Mutual Orange association; T. E. Woodward, Index Orchards, La Habra; F. B. Maxwell, Olive Hillside Groves; L. F. Finley, Orange Mutual Citrus association; J. V. Hixon, Placentia Co-operative Orange association; G. W. Rockefeller, director, Santa Ana-Tustin Mutual Citrus association.

country, in effect, that there never will be respect and obedience of this law as long as local and state officials wink at its violation and law-abiding citizens, themselves, continue drinking.

"Our whole system of self-government will crumble either if officials elect what laws they will enforce or citizens elect what laws they will support," the president said.

"There would be little traffic in illegal liquor if only criminals patronized it. We must awake to the fact that this patronage from large numbers of law-abiding citizens is supplying the rewards and stimulating crime."

Asks Citizens' Support
"I have been elected by you to execute and enforce the laws of the country. I propose to do so to the extent of my own abilities, but the measure of success that the government shall attain will depend upon the moral support which you, as citizens, extend."

"The worst evil of disregard for some law is that it destroys respect for all law," President Hoover added.

He did not go beyond his own pledge to attempt enforcement of the law. He reiterated his intention to appoint a national commission which, he said, would make "a searching investigation of the whole structure of our federal system of jurisprudence, to include the methods of enforcement of the 18th amendment and the causes of abuse under it."

"Its purpose will be to make such recommendations for reorganization of federal laws and court procedure as may be found desirable."

He announced that, in the meanwhile, he would transfer a large part of prohibition enforcement responsibility from the treasury to the justice department, "as a beginning of more effective organization."

President Hoover's emphasis upon prohibition, to which he devoted more attention than anything else, he said, but he coupled a similar pledge to do everything possible to advance world peace. Indicating this will be one of the chief aims of his administration, the president said:

Would Further Peace
"I covet for this administration a record of having further contributed to advance the cause of peace."

He offered to the rest of the world the sincere aid of the United States in further reducing armaments, but made no specific proposal.

Mr. Hoover predicted success for the present movement for revision of the protocol of the World Court so that the United States may enter it without further senate action, a movement which he sponsored. No more "potent instrumentality" for world peace ever has been conceived, the president said.

"The reservations placed upon our adherence should not be misinterpreted," he declared. "The United States seeks by these reservations no special privilege or advantage but only to clarify our relation to advisory opinions and other matters which are subsidiary to the major purposes of the court."

"The way should, and I believe will, be found by which we may take our proper place in a movement so fundamental to the progress of peace."

Mr. Hoover praised the Kellogg anti-war treaty.

"Its acceptance should pave the way to greater limitation of armaments, the offer of which we sincerely extend to the world." He dismissed the League of Nations by saying that the people of the United States "have determined that we should make no political engagements such as membership in the League of Nations, which may commit us in advance as a nation to become involved in the settlement of controversies between other countries."

"Peace," the president said, "can be contributed to by respect for our ability in defense."

Only Reference to Defense
This was his only reference to national defense.

"Peace can be promoted," he continued, "by the limitation of arms and by the creation of the instrumentalities for peaceful settlement of controversies. But it will become a reality only through self-restraint and active effort in friendliness and helpfulness."

The president said he leaves discussion of farm relief and tariff revision until his message to the special session of congress he will call. He did not indicate what date he would convene the session.

In a survey of the country's general economic situation he found satisfaction. As during the campaign, he opposed government ownership and operation but advocated rigid government control of business and public utilities privately owned and operated.

"The larger purpose of our economic thought should be to establish more firmly stability and security of business and employment and thereby remove poverty still further from our borders," the president declared.

"Our people have in recent years developed a new found capacity for co-operation among themselves to effect high purposes of public welfare."

In his appeal for extension of education, the president hinted at creation of a federal department of education, though he did not go on record to this effect.

"Although education primarily is a responsibility of the states and local communities," he said, "and rightly so, yet the nation as a whole is vitally concerned in its development everywhere to the highest standards and to complete universality."

Disapproves Party Animosity
In the American democracy, President Hoover declared, the popular will can be expressed only through parties. He approves the party system as established, but said "the animosities of elections should have no place in our government for government must concern itself along with the common weal." Responsibility for good government, he said, rests upon the people as much as upon their elected officials.

"Ours is a land rich in resources," the president concluded, "stimulating in its glorious beauty; filled with millions of happy homes; blessed with comfort and opportunity. In no nation are the institutions of progress more advanced. In no nation are the fruits of accomplishments more secure. In no nation is the government more worthy or respected. No country is more loved by its people."

"I have an abiding faith in their capacity, integrity and high purpose. I have no fears for the future of our country. It is bright with hope."

"In the presence of my countrymen, mindful of the solemnity of this occasion, knowing what the task means and the responsibility which it involves, I beg your tolerance, your aid and your co-operation; I ask the help of Almighty God in this service to my country to which you have called me."

A. M. Stanley, assistant director of insurance for the California Farm Bureau federation, and Mrs. Stanley, have returned from Bloomington, Ill., where Mr. Stanley and 12 district agents from all over California attended an agent's conference of the State Mutual Automobile Insurance company, in Bloomington. Mr. and Mrs. Stanley, visited relatives in Elkhorn, Wisconsin, also Niagara Falls and Buffalo, New York, before returning to California.

George Raymer, secretary, today reminded members of the Santa Ana Chamber of Commerce, that they should not fail to cast ballots tomorrow for selection of five members of the board of directors. Votes may be cast at the chamber office from 9 a. m. to 5 p. m.

Victor Walker, local sporting goods dealer, is rapidly recovering from an operation for appendicitis which he underwent at the Santa Ana Valley hospital last Friday night.

OCEANSIDE WILL HAVE ELKS LODGE

Organization of a lodge of Elks in Oceanside is assured, it was revealed here today by W. C. Jerome, district deputy, who attended a meeting in the beach city Saturday night for the purpose of furthering plans for organization.

Jerome said that approximately 150 men were at the conference, when reports were made showing that 72 men had signed for charter membership. Decision was made to leave the charter list open for two weeks by which time it is anticipated that 100 members, the maximum for charter membership, will be procured.

The district deputy revealed that in event of organization at Oceanside, San Clemente will come within the jurisdiction of the lodge, that city being nearer to Oceanside than to Santa Ana.

BEACH AUTOIST IS NEAR DEATH; OFFICER HURT

Automobile accidents reported in Orange county over the week-end, said by authorities to be "the worst series of accidents in the last two years," brought death of a little boy, possible fatal injuries to one man and less serious injuries to 12 others.

Three men are being held in the county jail, on charges of driving automobiles while under the influence of liquor and the other on a reckless driving charge. Gene Stroppe, 5-year-old son of Mrs. Claude Stroppe, of 1737 Temple street, Long Beach, was almost instantly killed at 3:30 p. m., Saturday, three miles west of Westminster, on the Long Beach-Santa Ana highway, when the car in which he was riding with his mother and brother, Billy, 10, was struck by a machine said to have been driven by James Stillwell, 74, of 125 West Third street, Long Beach. The Stroppe car overturned in a ditch at the side of the road.

Jugular Vein Severed
The jugular vein in young Stroppe's neck was severed and he died before medical aid could be administered. The body was taken to Long Beach.

According to a report made to F. W. Howard, chief criminal deputy sheriff, Stillwell attempted to drive around a truck driven by Jack Medlock, of Los Angeles and drove directly into the approaching Stroppe machine.

Mrs. Stroppe, Billy, Stillwell and Harry Sharp, the latter a passenger in the Stillwell machine, were cut and bruised in the crash. All of them were taken to Long Beach for medical treatment and none is believed to be seriously hurt.

Inquest into the death of the boy probably will be held in Long Beach tomorrow, Coroner Charles Brown said today. Stillwell was not held.

One man is reported dying and two others were seriously hurt as the result of a crash at 7:30 last night at the intersection of the Delhi road and South Bristol street. The car in which they were riding, driven by Fred Mullens, 30, of 320 Seventh street, Huntington Beach, failed to negotiate the corner and overturned.

William Purdin, 30, of 409 Third street, Huntington Beach, was reported dying in the Orange County hospital today from a severe basal fracture of the skull, received in the crash.

D. P. Eldridge, 40, also of 409 Third street, Huntington Beach, suffered a fractured hip and possible internal injuries. Mullens has internal injuries which may be serious, a broken arm and severe lacerations about the head.

M. E. Jemison, deputy sheriff, was seriously injured at 7:40 yesterday morning when the automobile he was driving was struck by a car reported operated by William Hallner, of 1277 1-2 Fifth avenue, Los Angeles, at the intersection of Orange and Placentia avenues.

His car, a police machine, overturned twice, pinning him underneath. He is in the Orange County hospital today, suffering from internal injuries, the seriousness of which has not been determined.

According to a report made by Jemison, his car was struck at the right rear fender by the Hallner machine, causing it to overturn. Jemison was on Placentia avenue at the time, enroute to Atwood to arrest several reported "drunks."

Five men in the other machine escaped injury, it was said.

Treble Clef Club Rehearsal Place Will Be Changed

Attention of Treble Clef club members was called today to a change which has been made in the place where choral rehearsals will be held. The club will meet for rehearsal at 7:50 p. m., tomorrow, in the First Congregational church on Main and Seventh streets, instead of at the First Methodist church as formerly. All members are urged to be present, being especially advised to note this change.

The Treble Clef club now is rehearsing for its next public appearance, scheduled for April 18, in connection with the second concert of the Santa Ana Symphony orchestra's winter series, for which an elaborate program is planned. The entire Treble Clef club also will take part in the opening program of Santa Ana's celebration of National Music week, to occur Sunday afternoon, May 5, in Birch park, at which time various choral organizations will unite in a spectacular program.

employed, suffered serious injuries at 3:15 p. m., Saturday, when the automobile she and her husband occupied, was struck by a car reported driven by Z. N. Neel, 26, a laborer, of 618 West Third street, Santa Ana, on the state highway one and a half miles north of Irvine station.

Driver Arrested
Neel later was arrested by Officers Howard, Humiston and Perry and is being held in the county hospital on a charge of driving an automobile while under the influence of liquor.

Mrs. Neel is in the Santa Ana Valley hospital, suffering from a fractured pelvis and spine and is partially paralyzed as a result of her injuries. Birdall received minor cuts and bruises.

Officers said that the Neel machine almost telescoped the Birdall car and they were surprised to find the woman alive when she was taken from the wreckage.

Neel is suffering from several fractured ribs, it was said.

Jack Baragary, 32, Downey engineer, was arrested by Officers Lentz, Perry and Cozad at Eighth and Broadway at 5:15 p. m., yesterday after the automobile he was driving is said to have crashed into a car operated by St. Clair Kenkins, 435 Cerritos street, Long Beach. No one was reported injured.

Baragary is booked in the county jail on a charge of driving an automobile while under the influence of liquor.

Jesse Garnez, Santa Ana, was reported slightly injured at 5:10 p. m., Saturday, south of Irvine station on the San Diego highway, when the car he was driving collided with a machine reported driven by R. B. Blankenship, of Santa Fe Springs.

Blankenship was arrested and is being held in the county jail on a reckless driving charge. Officers Stinson and Kelley, of the state traffic department, made the arrest.

A truck reported driven by Joe D. Teresi, Los Angeles, crashed into the Southern State bank building at Buena Park at 2:30 Saturday afternoon. The truck tore a hole in the side of the building and Teresi was hurt in the accident. He was taken to his home.

Ray Wallace, former deputy sheriff here, was run down by an automobile reported driven by D. O. Minter, 836 North Parton street, at Fourth and Parton streets, at 9:30 Saturday night.

He was removed to a physician's office and later taken to his home. His injuries are not believed to be serious.

WILL DISCUSS CAMP BETTERMENT PLANS

Plans for preliminary work at Camp Ro-Ki-Li prior to the summer vacation period was scheduled for discussion by the board of directors of the county Boy Scout organization at a meeting to be held at 4 p. m., today, in the executive office here, it was announced by George Walker, executive secretary.

Construction of a permanent mess hall at the camp long has been under discussion and it is understood that the board late this afternoon will make this a topic of serious consideration.

It was pointed out by Walker that the present mess hall is a temporary affair and entirely unsatisfactory because it does not offer dependable protection against rain and other weather conditions obtaining at times at the mountain camp site.

GENERATOR IS JUDGED BEST PAPER IN HIGH SCHOOLS OF LESS THAN 1000 STUDENTS

The honor of having the best all around paper in high schools of Southern California having under 1000 students was conferred upon the high school Generator Saturday at the Seventh Annual Newspaper day at the University of Southern California.

The Metropolitan Mirror, large weekly from Los Angeles, won the Grumble Allen trophy for the best all around paper, as well as the U. S. C. Daily Trojan award for the best in Class A or over 1000 students. The Generator award also was presented by the university. Those responsible for editing the winning paper are John Dunlap, editor; Ted Newcomb, associate editor; Robert Murrill, news editor; Russell Sullivan, sports editor; Richard Robbins, Elva Cook, Alice Myers and Mary Cianfoni.

During the morning session of the convention, famous newspapermen addressed the student journalists. Albert Perry noted English editor, now touring the United States observing American newspaper methods, discussed "The Difference Between English and American Newspapers." According to Perry, several large dailies of London have 2,000,000 circulation.

"The Front Page Story," as told by Leslie Dowell, reporter on the Los Angeles Examiner, was full of interesting facts about big stories. Marquis Busby, former editor of the U. S. C. Trojan and now assistant dramatic critic of the Los Angeles Times, gave an interesting treatise on the "Dramatic Critic."

Virgil Pinkley, Trojan editor, gave a short talk on sports. After a tour of the spacious campus, luncheon was served in the Student Union building. The awards were made here and announcement was made of the new scholarships being offered to worthy journalism students in Southern California. One boy and one girl deemed the best suited for the honor will be given their education by the university. President Rufus B. von KleinSmid, Prof. Marc Goodnow, Prof. Roy L. French, Grumble Allen, Virgil Pinkley and Bernice Palmer, in charge of arrangements, all gave talks. Pinkley presented the plaques to Dave Gershon, editor of the Metropolitan Mirror, and John Dunlap, editor of the Generator. Pictures of the winners and donors were taken for the Los Angeles Examiner.

Afternoon meetings for high school editorial workers, business managers and annual staff members were held. Informal discussions of problems and

ORANGE COUNTY SCHOOLS GIVEN $205,330.91

The state of California today allotted $205,330.91 to the elementary and secondary schools of Orange county in the February apportionment of state funds to public schools. The high school portion amounts to $111,356, while the elementary allotment totals $93,974.91.

For the entire state the apportionment was $8,567,646.71 and is the final division of state school funds for the 1928-1929 school year. It is based in part on average daily attendance. Average daily attendance in Orange county's elementary schools, on which the apportionment was worked out, was 15,901; while the average daily attendance for the high schools was 4592.

The two junior colleges in Orange county received their annual apportionment last fall, the sum being $23,100 for the Santa Ana college. In addition to this sum the colleges receive a flat sum of $2000 each annually. The larger allotments for junior colleges are

Metropolitan Life Insurance Company

EVERY business day in 1928, the 26 million policyholders of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, who are its sole owners, added a million dollars to the great reserve fund needed for their protection against the hazards of life and business—present and future.

Happily, more and more persons have a new understanding of what life insurance promises, what it can do and what it does do. They are learning that it does many different things equally well.

While the original purpose—to take care of the breadwinner's dependents in event of untimely death—has never been lost sight of, today life insurance is largely and directly concerned with the business of living.

Text Of Speeches By President and Vice-President

OBEEDIENCE OF LAW STRESSED BY HOOVER IN HIS INAUGURAL ADDRESS BEFORE U. S. SENATE

WASHINGTON, March 4.—(UP)—Following is the text of Mr. Hoover's inaugural address:

My Countrymen:

This occasion is not alone the administration of the most sacred oath which can be assumed by an American citizen. It is a dedication and consecration under God to the highest office in service of our people. I assume this trust in the humility of knowledge that only through the guidance of Almighty Providence can I hope to discharge its ever increasing burdens.

It is in keeping with traditions throughout our history that I should express simply and directly the opinions which I hold concerning some of the matters of present importance.

Our Progress

If we survey the situation of our nation both at home and abroad, we find many satisfactions; we find some causes for concern. We have emerged from the losses of the great war and the reconstruction following it with increased virility and strength. From this strength we have contributed to the recovery and progress of the world. What America has done has given renewed hope and courage to all who have faith in government by the people. In the large view, we have reached a higher degree of comfort and security than ever existed before in the history of the world. Through liberation from wide-spread poverty we have reached a higher degree of individual freedom than ever before. The devotion to and concern of our institutions are deep and sincere. We are steadily building a new race—a new civilization great in its own attainments. The influence and high purposes of our nation are respected among the peoples of the world. We aspire to distinction in the world, but to a distinction based upon confidence in our sense of justice as well as our accomplishments within our own borders and in our own lives. For wise guidance in this great period of recovery the nation is deeply indebted to Calvin Coolidge.

But all this majestic advance should not obscure the constant dangers from which self-government must be safeguarded. The strong man must at all times be alert to the attack of insidious disease.

Failure of Justice System

The most malign of all these dangers today is disregard and disobedience of law. Crime is increasing. Confidence in rigid and speedy justice is decreasing. I am not prepared to believe that it indicates an impotence of the federal government to enforce its laws.

"It is only in part due to the additional burdens imposed upon our judicial system by the 18th amendment. The problem is much wider than that. Many influences have increasingly complicated and weakened our law enforcement organization long before the adoption of the 18th amendment.

"To re-establish the vigor and effectiveness of law enforcement we must critically consider the entire federal machinery of justice, the redistribution of its functions, the simplification of its procedure, the provision of additional special tribunals, the better selection of judges and the more effective organization of our agencies of investigation and prosecution that justice may be sure and that it may be swift. While the authority of the federal government extends to but part of our vast system of national, state and local justice, yet the standards which the federal government establishes have the most profound influence upon the whole structure.

System Ill-Adapted

"We are fortunate in the ability and integrity of our federal judges and attorneys. But the system which these officers are called upon to administer is in many respects ill-adapted to present-day conditions. Its intricate and involved procedure have become the refuge of both big and little criminals. There is a belief abroad that by invoking technicalities, subterfuge and delay the ends of justice may be thwarted by those who can pay the cost.

"Reform reorganizations and strengthening of our whole judicial and enforcement system both in civil and criminal sides have been advocated for years by statesmen, judges and bar associations. First steps toward that end should not longer be delayed. Rigid and expeditious justice is the first safeguard of freedom, the basis of all ordered liberty, the vital force of progress. It must not come to be in our republic that it can be defeated by the indifference of the citizen, by exploitation of the deof political agencies alone. Progress is born of co-operation in the community—not from government restraints. The government should assist and encourage these movements of collective self help by itself co-operating with them. Business has, by co-operation, made great progress in the advancement of service, in stability, in regularity of employment and in the correction of its own abuses. Such progress, however, can continue only so long as business manifests its respect for law.

"There is an equally important field of co-operation by the federal government with the multitude of agencies, state, municipal and private, in the systematic development of those processes which directly affect public health, recreation, education and the home. We have need further to perfect the means by which government can be adapted to human service.

Education a Responsibility

"Although education is primarily a responsibility of the states and local communities, and rightly so, yet the nation as a whole is vitally concerned in its development everywhere to the highest standards and to complete universality. Self-government can succeed only through an instructed electorate. Our objective is not simply to overcome illiteracy. The nation has marched far beyond that. The more complex the problems of the nation become, the greater is the need for more and more advanced instruction. Moreover, as our numbers increase and as our life expands with science and invention, we must discover more and more leaders for every walk of life. We cannot hope to succeed in directing this increasingly complex civilization unless we can draw all the talent of leadership from the whole people. One civilization after another has been wrecked upon the attempt to secure sufficient leadership from a single group or class.

"If we would prevent the growth of class distinctions and would constantly refresh our leadership with the ideals of our people, we must draw constantly from the general mass. The full opportunity for every boy and girl to rise through the selective processes of education can alone secure to us this leadership.

Public Health

"In public health the discoveries of science have opened a new era. Many sections of our country and many groups of our citizens suffer from disease the eradication of which are mere matters of administration and moderate expenditure. Public health service should be as fully organized and as universally incorporated into our governmental system as is public education. The returns are a thousand-fold in economic benefits and infinitely more in reduction of suffering and promotion of human happiness.

World Peace

"The United States fully accepts the profound truth that our own prosperity and peace are interlocked with the progress, prosperity and peace in all humanity. The whole world is at peace. The dangers to a continuation of this peace today are largely the fear and suspicion which still haunt the world. No suspicion or fear can be rightly directed toward our country.

"Those who have a true understanding of America know that we have no desire for territorial expansion, for economic or other domination of other peoples. Such purposes are repugnant to our ideals of human freedom. The ideal of government is all adapted to the responsibilities which inevitably follow permanent limitations of the independence of other peoples. Superficial observers seem to find no destiny for our abounding increase in population, in wealth and power except that of prosperity. They fail to see that the American people are engrossed in the building for themselves of a new economic system, a new social system, a new political system—all of which are characterized by aspirations of freedom of opportunity and thereby are the negation of imperialism. They fail to realize that because of our abounding prosperity our youth are pressing more and more into the institutions of learning; that the public people are entering a larger vision through art, literature, science and travel; that they are moving toward stronger moral and spiritual life; that from these things our sympathies are broadening beyond the bounds of our nation and race toward their true expression in a real brotherhood of man.

Desire World Peace

"They fail to see that the idealism of America will lead it to no narrow or selfish channel, but inspire it to do its full share as a nation toward the advancement of civilization. It will do that by mere declaration but by taking a practical part in supporting all useful international undertakings. We not only desire peace with the world, but to see peace maintained throughout the world. We wish to advance the reign of justice and reason toward the extinction of force.

"The recent treaty for the renunciation of war as an instrument of national policy sets an advanced standard in our conception of the relations of nations. Its acceptance should pave the way to greater limitation of armament, the offer of which we sincerely extend to the world. But its full realization also implies a greater and greater perfection in the instrumentalities for pacific settlement of controversies between nations. In the creation and use of the instrumentalities we should support every sound method of conciliation, arbitration and judicial settlement. American statesmen were among the first to propose and they have constantly urged upon the world the establishment of a tribunal for the settlement of controversies of a justifiable character.

"The permanent court of international justice in its major purpose is thus peculiarly identified with American ideals and with American statesmanship. No more potent instrumentality for this purpose has ever been conceived and no other is practicable of establishment. The reservations placed upon our adherence should not be misinterpreted. The United States seeks by these reservations no special privilege or advantage, but only to clarify our relation to advisory opinions and other matters which are subsidiary to the major purpose of the court. The way should, and I believe will, be found by which we may take our proper place in a movement so fundamental to the progress of peace.

"Our people have determined that we should make no political engagements such as membership in the League of Nations, which may commit us in advance as a nation to become involved in the settlements of controversies between other countries. They adhere to the belief that the independence of America from such obligations increases its ability and availability for service in all fields of human progress.

"Lately returned from a journey among our sister republics of the western hemisphere, I have received unbounded hospitality and courtesy as their expression of friendliness to our country. We are held by particular bonds of sympathy and common interest with them. They are each of them building a racial character and a culture which is an impressive contribution to human progress. We wish only for the maintenance of their independence, the growth of their stability and their prosperity. While we have had wars in the western hemisphere yet on the whole the record is in encouraging contrast with that of other parts of the world. Fortunately the new world is largely free from the inheritances of fear and distrust which have so troubled the old world. We should keep it so.

"It is impossible, my countrymen, to speak of peace without profound emotion. In thousands of homes around the world, there are vacant chairs. It would be a shameful confession of our unworthiness if it should develop that we have abandoned the hope for which all these men died. Surely mankind is old enough so that we ought in our own lifetime to find a way to permanent peace.

respect for our ability in defense. Peace can be promoted by the limitation of arms and by the creation of the instrumentalities for peaceful settlement of controversies. But it will become a reality only through self-restraint and active effort in friendliness and helpfulness. I covet for this administration a record of having further contributed to advance the cause of peace.

Party Responsibilities

"In our form of democracy the expression of the popular will can be effected only through the instrumentality of political parties. We maintain party government not to promote intolerant partisanship but because opportunity must be given for expression of the popular will, and organization provided for the execution of its mandates and for accountability of government to the people.

"It follows that the government both in the executive and the legislative branches must carry out in good faith the platforms upon which the party was entrusted with power. But the government is that of the whole people; and party policies are determined and men chosen to bring them into being. The animosities of elections should have no place in our government for government must concern itself alone with the common weal.

Special Session of Congress

"Action upon some of the proposals upon which the Republican party returned to power, particularly further agricultural relief and limited changes in the tariff, cannot in justice to our farmers, or labor and our manufacturers be postponed. I shall therefore request a special session of congress for the consideration of these two questions. I shall deal with each of them upon the assembly of the congress.

Mandates From Election

"It appears to me that the more important further mandates from the recent election were the maintenance of the integrity of the constitution; the vigorous enforcement of the laws; the continuance of economy in public expenditure; the continued regulation of business to prevent domination in the community; the denial of ownership or operation of business by the government in competition with its citizens; the avoidance of policies which would involve us in the controversies of foreign nations; the more effective reorganization of the departments of the federal government; the expansion of public works, and the promotion of welfare activities affecting education and the home.

"These were the more tangible determinations of the elections, but beyond them was the confidence and belief of the people that we would not neglect the support of the embedded ideals and aspirations of America. These ideals and aspirations are the touchstones upon which the day-to-day administration and legislative acts of government must be tested. More than this, the government must, so far as lies within its proper powers, give leadership to the realization of these ideals and to the fruition of these aspirations. No one can adequately reduce these things to the spirit of phrases or to a catalogue of definitions. We do know what the attainment of these ideals should be: The preservation of self-government and its full foundations in local government; perfection of justice whether in economic or in social fields; the maintenance of ordered liberty; the denial of domination by any group or class; the building up and preservation of equality of opportunity; the stimulation of initiative and individuality; absolute integrity in public affairs; the choice of officials for fitness to office; the direction of economic progress toward prosperity and the further lessening of poverty; the freedom of public opinion; the sustaining of education and of the advancement of knowledge; the growth of religious spirit and the tolerance of all faiths; the strengthening of the home; the advancement of peace.

No Short Road

"There is no short road to the realization of these aspirations. Ours is a progressive people, but with a determination that progress must be based upon the foundation of experience. Ill-considered remedies for our faults bring only penalties after them. But if we hold the faith of the men in our mighty past who created these ideals, we shall leave them heightened and strengthened for our children.

"This is not the time and place for extended discussion. The questions before our country are problems of progress to higher standards. They are not the problems of degeneration.

"They demand thought and they serve to quicken the conscience and enlist our sense of responsibility for their settlement. And that responsibility rests upon you, my countrymen, as much as upon those of us who have been selected for office.

Rich in Resources

"Ours is a land rich in resources; stimulating in its glorious beauty; filled with millions of happy homes; blessed with comfort and opportunity. In no nation are the institutions of progress more advanced. In no nation is the government more worthy of respect. No country is more loved by its people. I have an abiding faith in their capacity, integrity and high purpose. I have no fears for the future of our country. It is bright with hope.

CURTIS TAKES OFFICE OATH: THANKS SENATE

United Press Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, March 4.—(UP)—Charles Curtis, of Kansas, will not follow in the footsteps of Charles G. Dawes, of Illinois, as a would-be reformer of senate rules while vice president of the United States. He made this clear today in his inaugural address.

"He (the vice president) is not one of the makers of the law, nor is he consulted about the rules adopted to govern your actions," said Curtis. "His obligation to the country to whom he owes his high position and his duty to you senators call for a fair and impartial interpretation of the rules which you yourselves have adopted and which you alone may change," he said.

Four years ago Dawes criticized the senate severely for its lax rules and served notice of his campaign to change them. He carried on the campaign, as promised, but the rules have not been changed. Curtis paid high tribute to the senate. He declared it "one of the most distinguished legislative bodies in the world" and its present personnel "of a calibre equal, if not superior, of any previous body." His entire address, less than two printed pages in length, was, in a measure, a defense of the senate.

Proud of Position

"The United States senate is today one of the most distinguished legislative bodies in the world—one of the greatest actual and potential organizations for the promotion and advancement of civilization. Its personnel is of a calibre equal to, if not superior, of any previous body heretofore assembled. Any individual, no matter how outstanding in the realm of leadership, political or otherwise, might well be proud to preside over its deliberations. I may, therefore, be pardoned in declaring here the feeling of pride which I experience that through my election as vice president of the United States such a signal honor has come to me. I hope I may prove worthy of the people's choice, and of you. No efforts of mine will be spared to aid and assist you in the successful solution of the numerous intricate and important problems which will come before you.

"During the course of my 20 years' service among you as senator from the state of Kansas, I have profited much from the wisdom, tact and experience of the members of this august body as displayed by its modest and unassuming members as well as by its most outstanding and brilliant leaders.

"My relations with the senators during all these years have been pleasant. My memories of persons and events in this chamber constitute some of the most delightful in a long public life by no means devoid of warming memories.

Admiration for Dawes

"At this point I may with propriety, I think, be permitted to offer to the honorable gentleman who is retiring as presiding officer of his body, Mr. Dawes, an expression of appreciation, admiration and esteem. We will all agree that he has filled his arduous and frequently onerous duties with credit and distinction, not only to himself but to the senate and to the people of the United States.

"It would seem fitting also at this point to offer a word of welcome and greeting to our new senators. They will find their fellow senators, as I have found them, most human and kindly gentlemen, willing and anxious to help newcomers where they may.

"My service among you has impressed me with the responsibilities of every senator and at the same time it has given me a clear understanding of the duties and obligations of the vice president.

Newport Beach Building Permits Show Increase

BANNER YEAR INDICATED BY CONSTRUCTION

NEWPORT BEACH, March 4.—Building activity is noticeable here, and is one of the indications for a banner beach season. For January and February of this year the building permits issued were valued at $167,990, as against $43,465 for the same months last year.

With the city harbor bond issue probably coming in June or July and prospects bright for the passage of the high school and harbor district bills by the present state legislature, unusual development is predicted.

Work is under way on the store and office building at Main and Central, Balboa, for Mr. and Mrs. Fred Stacey, also on a $15,000 house on Balboa island for W. A. Bartholomae, and on an eight-apartment building on Balboa peninsula for John O. King of Orange.

SEATTLE CAFE MAN VISITS IN COUNTY

SAN CLEMENTE, March 4.—Frank Rippe, Seattle restaurant man, and Mrs. Rippe, visited San Clemente over the week end. The Rippes were the guests of Bill Klepper, president of the Seattle Indians, now in training here. The Rippes renewed acquaintances with Ole Hanson, former Seattle mayor. They will return to Seattle in a few weeks.

TWO BALL TEAMS PLANNED IN OLIVE

Mainland To Isle Bridge Plans Ready

NEWPORT BEACH, March 4.—The $1,000,000 development on Lido Isle is being advanced in the office of City Engineer R. L. Patterson, and notice was received today that plans for the proposed bridge from the mainland to the island are on view at the office of Major C. P. Gross, U. S. district engineer, Los Angeles, where any objections based on navigation interests will be received until 11 a. m., March 11.

This bridge will be built instead of another one which was approved about a year ago. It will have a clear height of 14.6 feet at mean tide and a width between abutments of 40 feet.

Several houses have already been built in the new isle, including a handsome residence for W. C. Crittenden, of San Francisco, developer of the project, who succeeded John F. Elsbach in that undertaking.

OPTION SIGNED ON FULLERTON AIRPORT LAND

FULLERTON, March 4.—The finance committee of the city council and a special committee of the chamber of commerce are in possession of an option on the Fredrick Pagli property, which is the area desired for additional landing field space for the local airport, the price for the 262-3 acres being $20,000.

This is a reduction of $1333 from the original price which Pagli asked and is on the basis of a cash deal provided the bonds proposed by the city council are voted.

This land adjoins the present 54 acres of the city owned airport and provides for a 3000-foot runway which would classify the tract as a class "A" landing field under U. S. department of commerce regulations.

W. L. Hale and W. B. Potter of the city council finance committee and R. S. Gregory, Robert Strain and Howard Krause of the special chamber of commerce committee conferred with Pagli.

A resolution of intention calling for a bond issue is scheduled to come before the council at its regular meeting Tuesday night.

HARBOR BILL ENDORSED BY CLUB AT MESA

COSTA MESA, March 4.—The Friday Afternoon club endorsed the Orange county harbor district bill at the regular meeting held Friday afternoon in the clubhouse. Reports of chairman were given during the business session presided over by the club president, Mrs. F. B. Steadman.

Mrs. F. B. Steadman, chairman of community service, reported that a resolution had been passed that the state park board be requested to assist in beautifying the right-of-way in Costa Mesa.

Mrs. L. R. Daughenbaugh reported that between 35 and 50 children would take part in the play, "Tom Thumb Wedding," a benefit for the Friday Afternoon club. The play is to be given in the school auditorium March 22. Mrs. Cummings, of Long Beach, will direct the children.

Mrs. E. A. Randall, who is in charge of the baby clinic held each second Wednesday from 2 to 3 o'clock, will be assisted by Mrs. George Merrick.

A motion was passed that the Friday Afternoon club reserve the ball diamond for the use of the girls' gym club on Tuesday nights.

The Misses Sarah and Lida Conant were appointed delegates to the reciprocity day program of the Woman's club of Orange Monday.

A bazaar is being planned, and for that reason the club will meet each Friday afternoon. A group of members was appointed to serve with the regular members of the ways and means committee. New members of the committee are Miss Plummer, Miss S. Conant and Miss Lida Conant, Mesdames W. A. Guthrie, W. H. Evans, George Merrick, M. V. Starns, A. Brown, R. G. Roberts, A. Olson, E. Sutherland, W. W. Carruthers, J. Casad, R. E. Wertz, E. N. Cooper, C. Dunn, E. Ellis, O. B. Fawcett, Fuller, C. G. Heston, T. E. Balze, N. O. Meyer, W. W. Middleton, Maurice Moran, C. Plas, H. Schick, N. Stafford, J. O. Tallman, W. A. Tearn, H. Thayer, J. W. Webster, F. Wheeler and J. E. Williams.

The ways and means committee will meet in clubhouse next Friday at 2 p. m.

Mrs. Maurice Moran was in charge of the musical program. Mrs. Rose Mellett sang two numbers, "Love Sends a Little Gift of Roses" and "A Friend of Mine." Mrs. M. Moran accompanied at the piano.

Mrs. Moran gave "After the Storm" and an encore as piano numbers.

"The Brown Bird Singing" and "The Big Brown Bear," chorus numbers, were rendered by Mesdames R. Mellett, G. Merrick, J. Lewis, E. A. Randall, S. Patton and Miss L. Conant.

Mrs. E. Knight of Anaheim, will be the speaker on March 15, international relations day.

An invitation was read and accepted for members of the club to attend the organ recital this evening in the Community church. The Rev. L. R. Bayard will be organist.

Mrs. George Merrick and Mrs. Maurice Moran were hostesses. Refreshments and decorations were in green and white.

A. F. COREY ELECTED BROTHERHOOD HEAD

BUENA PARK, March 4.—After the church supper Friday night a brotherhood was formed. Prof. A. F. Corey was elected president; C. L. McComber, vice president, and Fred Bastady, secretary-treasurer. Dinner meetings will be held in the social hall of the Congregational church the third Friday of each month beginning March 15.

At the church supper the principal speaker of the evening was Samuel Davis, of Santa Ana. Eighty persons were present.

Mrs. Steele Says of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Pratt, W. Va.—"I was so weak and nervous that I was in bed most all the time and couldn't sit up and I am only 30 years old. I saw your advertisement in a magazine and after I had taken three boxes of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I could feel that I was better. After taking two bottles I began doing my work and I feel like a new woman. I recommend the Vegetable Compound to my friends and say it will do all it claims to do and more. I will gladly answer all letters I receive."

2 CANDIDATES ENDORSED AT SAN CLEMENTE

SAN CLEMENTE, March 4.—L. G. Nattemper and Dean Acres were nominated at a mass meeting Saturday evening as the Spanish village's candidates at the school board election March 22. Nattemper was San Clemente's choice for the place on the San Juan Capistrano union high school district board and Acres on the Serra school district board. Two men will be elected for the Capistrano board, and one for the Serra board, each candidate to serve three years.

Three candidates will run in the Capistrano board election, two to be elected. At present San Clemente has no representative on the board. Mrs. Jack Niederstadt of the Spanish village having resigned. On the Serra board, this city is represented by Ed Bartlett, who is serving a three-year term. Only one board member is to be elected in the Serra district.

Dan Mulherron, president of the San Clemente Chamber of Commerce, called the mass meeting and practically the whole voting population of the city turned out. Mulherron, who had been named chairman of the meeting, then called for a vote on a resolution introduced by Ed Gleason, of the engineering department, in which it was requested that all San Clemente residents back the candidacy of one Spanish village resident, and that any other candidate or candidates from San Clemente withdraw from the race, leaving the Spanish village backing one candidate, Nattemper, for the Capistrano election. This resolution passed with but two dissenting votes, those of Dr. Paul Esslinger and E. Kasselack.

Dr. Esslinger, a resident of San Clemente, who has his office in San Juan Capistrano, had filed his entry before the meeting and refused to withdraw from the race. The candidacy of Guy Willows, of Capistrano, was endorsed.

SEPARATION OF SCHOOL AT SAN CLEMENTE

SAN CLEMENTE, March 4.—This city has started a move to make San Clemente a school district. At present the Spanish village is in the Serra school district but civic leaders feel that San Clemente is now large enough to take care of its own school matters. At a mass meeting held in the social club Saturday night, a resolution was passed that it was the duty of the city fathers to make San Clemente school district should be formed as quickly as possible.

Dan Mulherron, president of the chamber of commerce and chairman of the meeting, appointed Mrs. Clyde Holland, president of the Parent-Teacher association; Mayor Thomas F. Murphine and Den Acres, attorney, as a committee to investigate moves necessary to form a new district comprising San Clemente.

The committee will meet with its city attorney and county officials in regard to the formation of the new district. If such a move receives proper endorsement, the city, according to Mayor Murphine, will need the school to the new district and a move will be started to build a necessary addition to the structure.

Training Course For Girl Scouts To Begin Tonight

ANAHEIM, March 4.—A six-weeks' training course will begin tonight for Girl Scout leaders of Anaheim. The course is being sponsored by the Anaheim Girl Scout community committee.

Interest in the event was evidenced at the pot-luck dinner meeting of mothers and Scout leaders, which was held Saturday evening in the cafeteria of the Freemont school, when plans were made for the training course. The affair was in charge of the Miss Adah Wilcox, Anaheim Girl Scout director.

MESA SCOUTS WIN FROM BEACH TEAM

COSTA MESA, March 4.—The first Scout baseball game of the season on neutral grounds was played Saturday on the Lions' ball diamond, with the score 13 to 3 in favor of Costa Mesa Scouts, who played the Newport troop.

The line up for Costa Mesa was as follows: P. Chris Brown; C. Jean Willcutt; 1b. William B. Brown; 2b. Red Steele; 3b. Lloyd Salisbury; rf. Ralph Myreth; cf. Hugh Davis; lf. Emil Myreth; ss. Willard Conwell.

CAREFUL PACKING

If packing to go away soon, save the cardboard that comes home in father's shirts. These, slipped into frocks, make excellent protectors from wrinkles. If the frocks are folded about them just right, they will come out of the suitcase perfect.

PRETTY BATHROOMS

Why not color up the bathroom this spring? Any flowered paper can be shelled out so that it is waterproof. With woodwork the color of the paper's background, the family won't know the old bathroom in its new dress.

Educational-Social Unit Of M. E. Church Is Completed

DR. WARMER IS EXPERIENCED IN BUILDING WORK

Dr. George A. Warmer, pastor of the First Methodist church here, was minister at Westlake church, Los Angeles, before coming to Santa Ana. He completed the merger between the Westlake and Wilshire church while serving there.

Having been experienced in the fields of new building construction before, Dr. Warmer has shown much efficiency as general director of activity in the project here. He rebuilt churches while minister in Bakerfield, Calif., Minnesota, Massachusetts and completed a new building in Goleta, Calif.

Dr. Warmer received his B. A. degree from the University of North Dakota, and his master's degree from Wesley college, N. D. He took a special post graduate course at Boston university and came directly to California when his wife's health began to fail.

Dr. and Mrs. Warmer have been sweethearts from youth. They first met when she was the age of three, later attended high school together, and were married while the pastor was a student in college. George Jr., Charles, Florence and Craig Warmer are the children of the popular minister and his wife. They reside at 613 Spurgeon street.

PROJECT UNDER CONSIDERATION SEVERAL YEARS

Anticipations of five years have at last culminated in the actual building of the new educational-social unit of the First Methodist church of Santa Ana.

Study of religious educational Sunday school plans for Southern California commenced when the Rev. Will A. Betts was pastor of the local church in 1922. It was during the period of his ministry here that A. H. Theal and R. R. Lutes, superintendent and assistant superintendent, respectively, of the Sunday school department, introduced the need of a new building in connection with the young people's work at the church.

The building enterprise has since been an active project in the functions of the church, and the plant dedicated yesterday is the development of several years' endeavor.

Board Aided Church
A building committee members availed themselves of the services of the Methodist church board of architects at Chicago, Ill., and plans of the building as drawn by a Los Angeles firm, Marsh, Smith and Powell, were submitted to the board with but very few suggestions for changes.

Plans were rearranged six times and the Los Angeles firm was faithful and willing to co-operate with the local advisory committee.

The building itself consists of four floors with a banquet hall in the basement. The administration department, consisting of the minister's study, secretary's room and the minister of education's study, is on the first floor. Children of the primary department, ages 6, 7 and 8 years; a nursery room with gas plate and kitchenette; the church kindergarten, with fixtures and cabinet equipment, for children of 4 and 5 years of age; and the beginners' department with classes for children 2 and 3 years are on the first floor.

Chapel Seats 200
The chapel on the first floor is an achievement in interior design. It has a seating capacity of approximately 200 persons and the two chandeliers are valued at $250. Three bracket lamps are features of beauty on each of the north and south walls. The stained

RECALL BIRTH OF FIRST M. E. CHURCH IN S. A.

By MR. AND MRS. V. L. STEWARD AND MRS. C. W. BURNS

When, in September, 1873, the Southern California Conference sent Will A. Knighten to the Orange circuit he found in Santa Ana, which was one of his prospective charges, a number of persons holding Methodist church letters: Mr. and Mrs. Lemuel Robinson, Mrs. Silas Ritchie, Mrs. Timmons, Mr. and Mrs. John Evans, Mrs. R. J. Blee (then Mrs. N. O. Stafford) and Miss Demaris Hotel. With these eight he organized the First Methodist class in Santa Ana.

There were already established here organizations of the Methodist church South, the Christian church and the Baptist church and these were holding Sunday services by turns in the school house, a rough, unfinished and crudely furnished building on the ground now occupied by the Methodist Church South. This privilege was freely shared with the new Methodist organization giving them the fourth Sunday and, when such occurred, the fifth Sunday in each month. Here, then, with Will A. Knighten as pastor and John R. Tansey as presiding elder our church began its work.

During the next five years the work was carried on as an outpost of the Orange circuit by J. D. Crum, J. M. Campbell and F. D. Boyard in rapidly succeeding terms. The old schoolhouse was moved away and there was opportunity for only occasional public meetings through the kindness of the Methodist Church South in the church which they had built on the old school site. But in 1878 our church was established as a separate charge under Horace Holderidge as pastor. Latimer's hall, on the southeast corner of Fourth and Bush streets, was secured and for the first time regular Sunday and mid-week services were held.

Sometime in 1878 or 1877 the members of the church had purchased two lots at the southwest corner of Main and Second streets, and when in 1880 C. W. Tarr was appointed to this charge he at once began planning for a church building there. This he succeeded in erecting that year and in 1881 the new building at Second and Main was dedicated free of debt. As so often happens the new church, though ample for immediate needs, soon proved insufficient for the rapidly increasing Methodist group and during many of the next years the meetings were held in Neal's hall and in Spurgeon's hall.

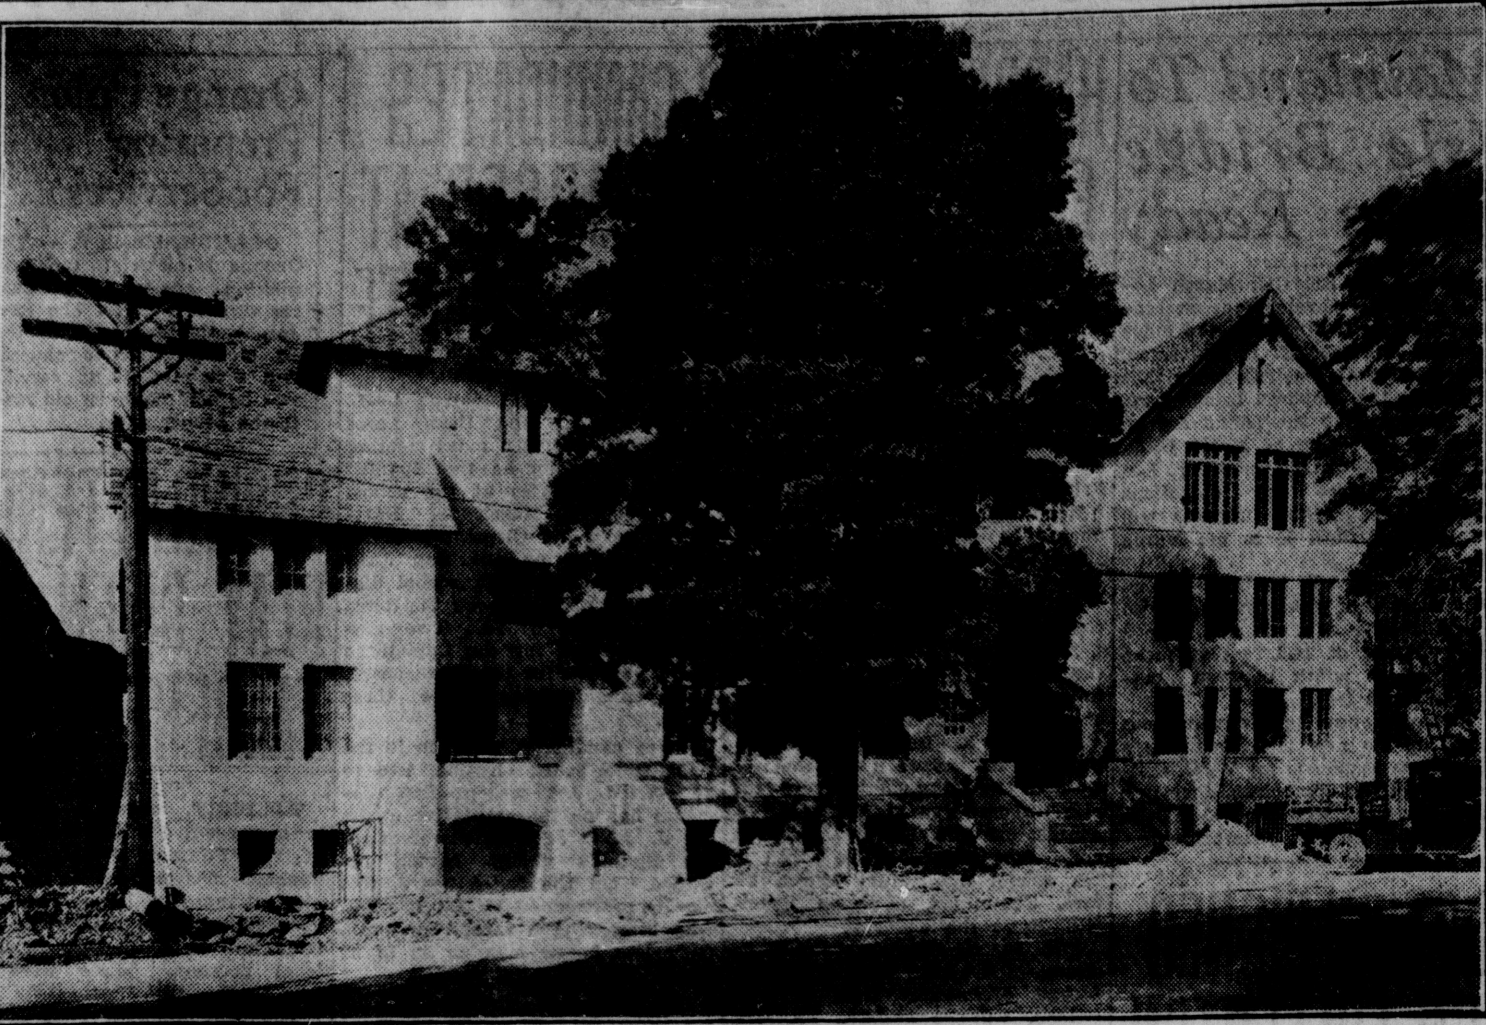

Parsonage Built
Churches, like other organizations, make mistakes and such seems to have been the experience of this church when in the boom days of 1887 large profit from increased value of real estate was visioned and a number of lots on French street were bought and a parsonage built at Third and French streets, incurring a debt of several thousand dollars. The boom broke that year, values declined sharply and interest charges of the debt kept the church poor.

Part of the debt was paid off during C. J. Chase's pastorate in 1890. In 1891, while J. C. Henley was pastor, the church was again in its own home and was free from hall rent. In 1892 E. J. McIntire came as pastor, and that

NEW SANTA ANA FIRST METHODIST STRUCTURE OPENED SUNDAY

Shown below is the new educational-social unit of the First Methodist church of Santa Ana. Construction started after the arrival of Dr. George A. Warmer, pastor, in October, 1927. It is to be used for the religious education and social life of young people in this community.

EXPERTS HAD DIRECTION OF CHURCH WORK

Marsh, Smith and Powell, architects, engineers and builders, of Los Angeles, superintended the construction of the educational-social unit of the First Methodist church here. The new building, located where the old community house stood, is an achievement of its kind.

Norman Marsh has been in business in Los Angeles for 26 years. D. D. Smith, engineer of the firm, is a graduate of Stanford University, and was a military engineer in charge of construction at Brest, France, during the World war. Herbert Powell is the designer of the firm. He was graduated from the school of architecture at Harvard and studied abroad one year with the Sheldon Traveling Fellowship. He is an instructor in sophomore designing in the school of architecture in the University of Southern California.

R. R. Lutes, of Santa Ana, a member of the church and assistant superintendent of the Sunday school, co-operated with the architects as superintendent on the job. His thorough knowledge of building construction has been a large factor in making the plant a success, Powell said.

The firm has been organized two years. Featured among its activities in this vicinity are the South Pasadena junior high school, buildings at the University of Redlands and in Santa Ana, the new educational-social unit of the Methodist church.

In discussing the new building, which provides for a completely departmentalized Sunday school, Powell said:

"After deliberation a modified English Gothic architectural style was selected. In design of the exterior an attempt was made to break the severity of line and keep the building from looking institutional.

"The roof is of Vermont slate and the walls are stuccoed in smooth hand-finished texture. Cast stone trimming is introduced at several entrances and certain of the floors are finished in tile.

"There are 30 to 40 classrooms in the building, but the feature of interest is to be found in the chapel. It has a beamed ceiling and stained glass windows, which were designed by the Judson studios. The interior trimming and wooden pews are of Philippine mahogany. Lighting fixtures are of Gothic design and furnished by Leo Dorner of the Empire Fixture company, Los Angeles."

Powell concluded his remarks by referring to the dining hall in the basement, which is electrically equipped and thoroughly modern in every respect, and the administration department consisting of the minister's study, the secretary's room and the minister of education's room.

First Methodist Church Resident Pastors Listed

Resident ministers of the First Methodist church include Dr. Edmund M. Mills, 2429 Poinsettia street; the Rev. A. E. Carhart, 611 Orange avenue; the Rev. J. L. Collins, 921 Garfield street; the Rev. Delmar French, 519 East Walnut street; the Rev. George B. Wiltse, 510 East Chestnut street; the Rev. George Winterbourne, 1419 West Washington; the Rev. W. E. Edgin, 715 South Parton street; the Rev. John Winterbourne of the Goodwill Industries, 1029 East Fourth street; and the Rev. William M. Todd, R. D. 2, Box 97, Orange.

CREDIT GIVEN TO OFFICIALS FOR BUILDING

The educational-social unit of the First Methodist church of Santa Ana has been completed. Credit for the accomplishments is due in great part to church officials and committees, who have been actively engaged in planning the new buildings and furnishings.

The building, located on the corner of French and Sixth streets, is symbolical of the practical forethought and co-operative spirit of many Santa Ana citizens.

Officials of Church

Church officials and members who have expended much time and effort on serving committees for the new building include the official board with F. W. Wiesseman, chairman; O. H. Barr, P. A. Robinson, A. J. Lasby and F. P. Jayne, trustees, and the stewards, S. M. Davis, chairman; Jesse Albright, B. H. Sharpless, P. L. Briney, T. A. Winbiger, Orlyn Robertson, Fred Zaiser, W. J. Saunby, E. A. Noe, W. A. Taylor, W. D. Barnard, J. S. Smart, A. G. Diehl, E. W. Smith, John Wehrly, C. M. Halderman, V. L. Steward, W. D. Baker, R. D. Garner, W. S. Kellogg, A. H. Theal, John Estes Jr., John D. Ball, Leonard Halderman, L. R. Klatt, George Fairles, Edward Ehlen, J. H. Bower, H. G. Wetherell, Cecil Marks, William J. Stauffer, C. L. Chaffee, R. I. Matthews, J. Frank Burke, Samuel S. Vogt, R. R. Lutes, W. F. Kistinger, E. Beamer, Carl Wiesseman, and W. C. Baker.

FIRST WEDDING IN NEW CHURCH IS PERFORMED

The first wedding to be performed in the new chapel of the First Methodist church was solemnized Saturday evening, the Rev. Dr. George A. Warmer officiating.

Miss Hazel Edna Short and Walter Harold Kelly, of Long Beach, attended by Miss Mary E. Du Vall and Cecil L. Virden, also of Long Beach, were delighted to be the first bridal party in the church unit.

Mrs. F. W. Wiesseman and Mrs. J. T. Wilson brought great baskets of flowers, which had been sent from the Barr Lumber company, Chandler's Furniture company, Robertson Electric company, several from Maxine's shop, and the Aid society of the church, to make of the chapel a floral scene of beauty.

Mrs. B. H. Sharpless, A. H. Theal and R. D. Garner were other members of the finishings committee who attended the unexpected wedding.

year the people rallied splendidly and paid off the entire debt. Mrs. C. W. Burns and Mrs. J. G. Quick burned the mortgage.

In 1896, while Isaac Jewell was pastor, a room was added on the west side of the church for the primary department of the Sunday school and for Epworth league meetings. In spite of this, as the membership and congregation grew in numbers and the scope of the work broadened, its significance became more apparent and the inadequacy of the equipment so impressed the pastor that he began agitation for a new plant. This project was not realized until the close of the year 1899, John B. Green being pastor. Lots were purchased at the corner of Sixth and Spurgeon streets, the building erected upon the present site, and dedicated in January, 1900. The pipe organ was given by Mrs. J. W. King in memory of her husband.

A growing church school and increasing membership and congregation, made enlargement again necessary in 1912, when classrooms and balcony were added. This work was done by our E. W. Smith, as contractor.

Form New Church
Transportation was not as convenient in 1914 as it now is, and at that time it seemed wise to establish a new Methodist organization in the south part of Santa Ana. A number of our members who lived south of First street voluntarily severed connection with the First church and formed the Richland Avenue church. This group has, ever since that time, rendered a valuable service in that section. At first the central group gave not only of members but of means for the new enterprise, which has for some years been an independent work.

Another enterprise in which we have great interest, and to which we are always glad to give support, is the Mexican church at First and Garfield streets. This work was begun as a local interdenominational mission, in 1908. It was allocated to the Methodist church in 1912 and has since been our special charge. The work is, to an increasing degree self-supporting, but since the best paid trades and professions are still glad to help, as we shall be while this condition exists, we will give what help they need.

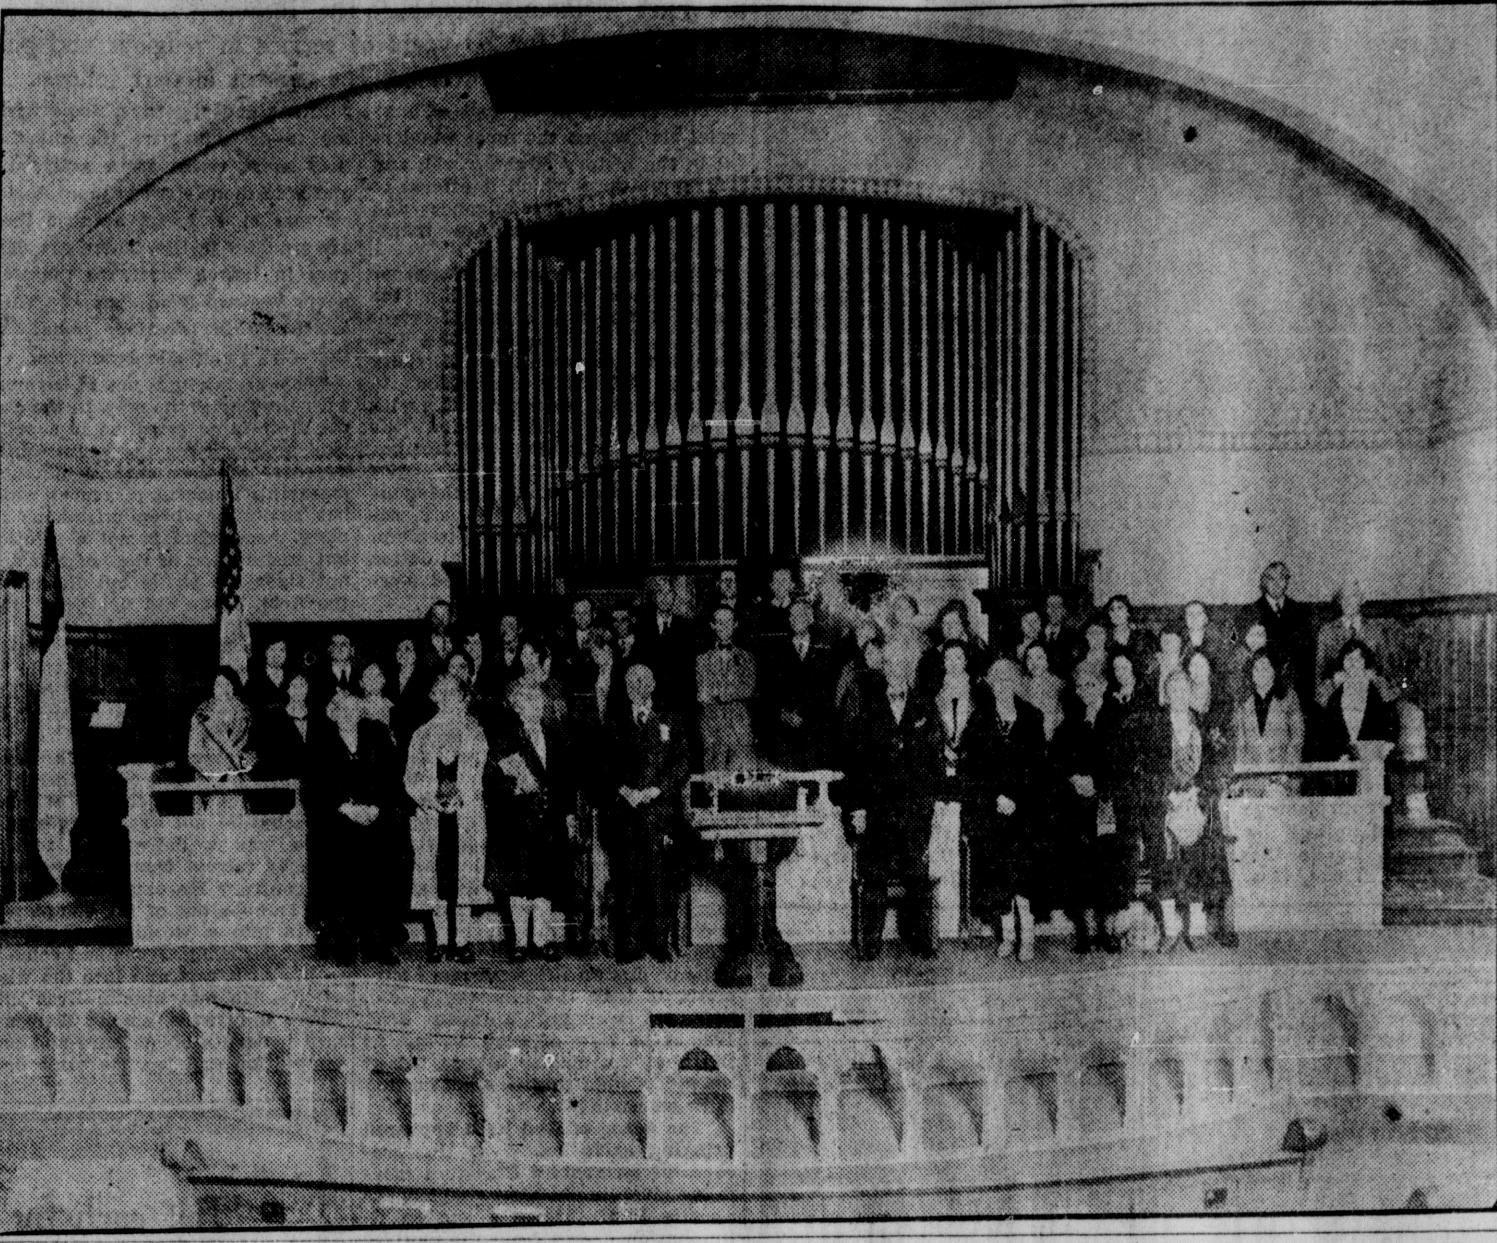

The ground where our new building has just been erected once was owned and occupied by A. J. Visel, who was formerly one of the trustees, associated with J. G. Quick, Dr. C. D. Ball and C. W. Burns. It was purchased with the house which occupied the site in 1918. This has since been used as a social and educational plant, for junior, intermediate and young people's work.

The work on the new building has in large measure been done by local contractors and mostly by our own members. The building contract went to E. W. Smith, before mentioned in connection with our enlargement of the year 1912; the plumbing to George Cocking; the electric work to Orlyn Robertson; the building materials were furnished by the Barr Lumber company, represented by Richard A. Emlison.

"Key Men" Listed
This is in brief outline the history of the interests and enterprises with which our church has been engaged during the past 50 years. Let us speak also briefly of some of the people who have, through the years, given of time, money and heart to the real work of the church. We are putting an ever-increasing emphasis on religious education. The church school has been the agency for this work, and the church school superintendent, under the pastor, has been the "key-men." We have not been able to make a complete list of the superintendents, but the following names have been mentioned and are placed in an approximation to chronological order:

W. A. Inaley, Jonathan Harmon, Daniel B. Newell, C. A. Martin, J. M. Clark, A. N. Runkle, E. T. Langley, Charles F. Heil, C. H. Coulter, W. P. Coffman, Dr. J. M. Raugh, F. M. Gulick, E. H. Mc-

Math, Joe Head, A. J. Lasby, W. J. Saunby, and A. H. Theal.

One man who came to us in September, 1920, has held a unique relation to our work. James H. Hughes has lived among us and succeeded in so becoming one of us that we feel he, in a peculiar way, belongs. A new day dawned in our church school and young people's work when he came to be assistant pastor. He deserves much credit for the thoroughly graded work which is now being done in our school.

Venna Goodwin, who has been our office assistant the past year, is making herself indispensable.

The pastor and all the other church officers are coming to rely upon her. These are some of the people who have carried on our work, and with them have been associated literally thousands who have given help well worth mentioning if there were room.

Laymen do not feel competent to do justice to the many loyal and devoted ministers who have served and been loved by the communicants of our church as well. It is beyond the dream of the writer of this sketch to express to the satisfaction of our members the regard in which our present minister is held. Every minister has some personal gift in which he excels—some service which he performs that in a unique way is peculiar to himself. Dr. George A. Warner possesses many such gifts and renders a variety of forms of most happy and helpful service, among which perhaps none commends him more highly than the pastoral oversight he gives to this membership. Such personal interest endears him to us all. But this intimate, time-consuming service does not circumscribe his activities within the bounds of the church proper. He finds time to answer many community calls. He speaks with such human understanding that he is in constant demand for all varieties of occasions.

MINISTERS BOOST GROWTH OF CHURCH

The growth and development of the First Methodist church of Santa Ana has been effected through the years of service by different ministers who filled the pulpit.

The pastors include Will A. Knighten, 1873; J. D. Drum, 1875; J. M. Campbell, 1876; F. D. Boyard, 1877; Horace Holdridge, 1878; J. C. Calloway, 1879; Charles W. Tarr, 1880; Charles Leach, 1882; A. H. Summers, 1883; A. L. Dearing, 1884; J. W. Van Cleave, 1885; W. H. Sterling, 1887; C. J. Chase, 1889; J. C. Healy, 1891; E. O. McIntire, 1892; I. Jewell, 1895; J. B. Green, 1899; B. C. Cory, 1901; T. C. Miller, 1904; Herbert E. Murkett, 1909; E. J. Inwood, 1912; Harcourt W. Peck, 1916; John Oliver, 1918; Will A. Betts, 1922; Charles M. Seitter, 1926, and George A. Warner, 1927.

Avoid Ugly Pimples

A pimply face will not embarrass you much longer if you get a package of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. The skin should begin to clear after you have taken the tablets a few nights.

Cleanse the blood, bowels and liver with Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, the successful substitute for calomel; there's no sickness or pain after taking them.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets do that which calomel does, and just as effective, but their action is gentle and safe instead of severe and irritating.

No one who takes Olive Tablets is ever cursed with a "dark brown taste," a bad breath, a dull, listless, "no good" feeling, constipation, torpid liver, bad disposition or pimply face.

Olive Tablets are a purely vegetable compound mixed with olive oil; know them by their olive color. Dr. Edwards spent years among patients afflicted with liver and bowel complaints and Olive Tablets are the immensely effective result. Take nightly for a week. See how much better you feel and look. 15c, 30c, 60c.—Adv.

OLIVE

OLIVE, March 4.—Mrs. Emily Moreland and sister, Mrs. E. B. McCoy, with their guests, Mr. and Mrs. D. J. McLennan, of Duluth, drove to Palm canyon Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Herman Lemke and

"Come to the church in the wild-wood,
Oh, come to the church in the vale;
No spot is so dear to my childhood
As the little brown church in the vale."

Though having a similar objective, yet from an architectural standpoint it is rather a far cry from the one-story, one-room "little brown church in the wild-wood" to the four-story, 78-room, modern Religious Educational Plant just completed by the membership of the First Methodist Church of Santa Ana.

In all lands and in all climes those edifices erected for religious worship seem to outlive most of their contemporaneous structures—and we believe it is well that this is so—viz., the majestic cathedrals of Europe, the temples of Greece and Rome of earlier date, or Solomon's Temple concerning which the Bible gives a very complete description in I Kings.

Solomon sought in the four corners of the then known world for those elements which would give the structure all beauty and strength; but consider with us for a moment concerning present day methods and accomplishments as evidenced in our own "Temple" which stands at the corner of Sixth and French streets.

The foundation was formerly a part of our California mountains; the superstructure came from the fir forests of the Great Northwest; the roof of slate was originally a part of an age-old deposit in the eastern section of the U. S. A.; southern plantations were called upon to furnish the Celotex for insulation; from the iron mines of Michigan came the ore which has been skillfully moulded into the hardware; our island possessions in the Pacific grew the hardwood which so enhances the beauty of the interior; and far away Belgium furnished the quartz, the chief element in the manufacture of glass.

As you inspect this building (and we hope you all will), please pay especial attention to the sash and doors, the interior trim and the cabinet work—these items were manufactured in our own mill and we are mighty proud of them all.

Prayer, O. W. Reinius, minister of Richland Avenue Methodist church. Anthem, "The Heavens Are Telling."

CARE USED IN BUYING GOODS FOR BUILDING

By MRS. J. T. WILSON

Secretary Interior Furnishings Committee

When the new building had reached the stage where the chapel, assembly rooms, class rooms, secretaries' offices, kitchen and kitchenettes could be recognized, the committee on arrangements and furnishings was called to buy and arrange the necessary equipment.

To make the building pleasant, harmonious and at the same time practical for the children and young people and to give it a worshipful atmosphere, was our task.

Spiritual Keynote

The chapel strikes the spiritual keynote of the building. Shedding soft, subdued shadows, the art glass windows carry their message from the "tablets of stone" in the rear window, through the symbols leading up to the central window of the Christ. They were made by the Judson studios of Los Angeles. Walter Judson and J. L. Judson are recognized as leaders of art glass men, coming from a family of artists. Their late father was dean of the school of arts at the University of Southern California.

The dark beamed ceiling, decorated in soft colored stencils, symbolic and full of interest, with the rich brown pews and grey velvet carpet, all add their bit to make this a quiet, peaceful place for reverent thinking. One is inclined to stop and rest awhile in this sacred chapel. The stencils and designing is the work of Lucile Lloyd, of Glendale, eminent mural decorator.

Drapes of figured linen arranged in the pastor's study, which is furnished with walnut desk and chairs. The gray carpet is also used in the secretaries' offices and the drapes here are gray.

In Gray Velvet

The seven assembly rooms are carpeted in gray velvet. The social hall has stenciled ceiling and beams. The senior hall has decorations depicting the Four Evangelists and symbolic scroll designed by Lucile Lloyd.

Pianos are provided for each group and reed furniture and chairs are used for the assembly rooms. Drapes in these rooms are gray and hung on wrought iron rods for the older groups and for the little children the drapes are on wooden poles and brightened by soft pastel braid.

Hall floors are covered with linoleum in three shades of gray with a splash of rose color.

Firms Assisted

Local managers of the Southern California Edison Company through P. H. Booth of the Edison Electric Appliance Company, appreciating the work this educational plant would do for the boys and girls of the community, displayed their interest by presenting two Hot Point electric ranges as a gift. These furnish all the cooking equipment for the kitchen.

This church is the only one so equipped in Southern California. It has two steam tables, electric coffee urns and cooking utensils, in fact, all articles needed to serve so large a membership were placed in the kitchen. The light, spacious dining room is arranged to accommodate 500 persons.

Three Kitchenettes

On each of the three floors are kitchenettes equipped to serve light refreshments. New chairs were purchased for the assembly rooms. The used chairs were repaired and painted for use in the class rooms.

Supervision of the tints for walls and woodwork took thought and time.

Greetings, the Minister.

Address, Dr. O. Scott McFarland, minister of First Presbyterian church and chairman of Ministerial Union.

Contralto solo, Mrs. F. W. Slabaugh.

Address, Dr. Daniel F. Rittenhouse, minister First Baptist church of Pasadena, Calif.

Hymn. Doxology.

FURNISHINGS COMMITTEE

PILOTS BOARD

O. H. Barr, chairman of the advisory board and a member of the finance committee at the First Methodist church has been active in all interests of the local church. He has been in Santa Ana eight years and was born in West Virginia.

explains itself and is evidence of the ungrudgingly liberality which has made possible the completion of the new educational-social unit of the local church. As written the unsigned poem reads:

"We bring this lovely temple Lord, and dedicate to thee,

This stately pile of masonry, a spiritual home to be,

Where Bill and Bob and Bess and Sue, and many more as well

May learn the way of life aright and of its riches tell.

Where sainted souls may teach Thy word to Thy dear little ones

And by Thy grace may show their love akin to Thy dear Son's;

In building up in Christian life the youth of this great day

And help to make it easier the Master to obey.

Where all may truly learn of Thee and walk the narrow way

That leads to everlasting life in heaven's eternal day.

Accept this mite; it may be more than others give

From out their rich abundant store where favored ones may live."

NOTED BISHOP IS SPEAKER AT DEDICATION CEREMONIES FOR NEW M. E. CHURCH UNIT

Bishop William Burt, who was born in England, delivered the evening sermon yesterday at the dedicatory service of the First Methodist church. The Bishop was knighted by Victor Emanuel for 20 years of service in religious and philanthropic activities at Rome. His address in part follows.

"The present is an age of material civilization the most wonderful in the history of the world, and the temptations which it offers to spend life in self-indulgence and the pursuit of pleasure are manifold.

"Pleasures of sense and of a sense governed are brought within the reach of all classes to an extent unknown in any previous age. The marvelous discoveries in electricity and the surprising application to human needs, the swiftness with which thought flies around the world, the new methods of locomotion, the multiplication of labor saving machines, and the cheapening of art products and of so-called luxuries, all conspire to tempt the senses and to call off attention from 'the things unseen and eternal.'"

"By common consent thought has been centered mainly upon physical comfort, material advantages, industrial progress and social well-being. "We have every reason to expect that the multiplication of these material resources and of these pleasures will advance with increasing ratio, for one invention leads to another and the latest miracle of science and of human ingenuity is soon surpassed by some thing still more wonderful. The face of the world and the conditions of human life even more surprisingly than the nineteenth did, and that is saying a good deal. Was it in view of such an age as this that the master asked: 'When the son of man cometh shall he find faith on earth?'"

"The grace of God hath appeared bringing salvation. Over the precepts of an austere Christian morality given in the first chapter, the apostle Paul throws a sudden illumination drawn from the motives which the advent of the Gospel inspires in Christian souls. The grace of God has become manifest, bringing salvation to all, young and old, men and women, rich and poor, master and servants, student and professors, teaching all how to live.

"Please note that nothing is said here about dogmas, creeds, or ceremonies of the church. It was not to teach these that the grace of God appeared, but to teach folk how to live in the present world.

"First, by denying ungodliness and worldly lusts." They that are Christ's have just put off, concerning the former conversation, the old man which is corrupt, and have crucified the flesh with affections and lusts. The old sinful life has come to an end, and henceforth we are to live in 'this present world' soberly, righteously and godly."

"Soberly has reference to the duties we owe ourselves; righteously or justly refers to our relations with others; and godly has to do with our obligations toward God. What does Jesus teach concerning these three words which sum up our duties as Christians toward ourselves, our fellowmen and to God in this present world?"

"1. Soberly, temperance or self control. Live soberly with respect to ourselves in the government of our among publicans and sinners and He came eating and drinking.

"To live soberly is something more than mere abstinence from intoxicants. It means bringing the whole body into subjection to higher powers and for nobler uses. No one lives soberly in the new Testament sense who simply turns the key in some one door of his bad self.

"Within the serpents of lust and passion turn, wriggle and rage with mad violence and sometimes lift up their heads after having been wounded many times. Shall we simply keep them suppressed within us?"

"What does Christ say? 'If thy right hand offend thee, cut it off. If thy right eye lead thee astray, pluck it out.' If we have an appetite, passion, temper, or something worse we must master it or it will master us. We should take no moral risks. At any or every cost we must cut off or pluck out that by which we are liable to fall. We must put under foot that which would destroy us."

"This control over ourselves must not be purely negative. Experience shows how beautiful and beneficent when controlled and constrained to their own time, place and function are those instincts which when uncontrolled tend most inevitably to corruption and destruction. "Fire may be devouring the demon, or a force which carried us and our burdens at the rate of sixty miles an hour.

"Water may uproot trees, sweep away houses and destroy crops or it may drive the wheels of commerce and make fruitful the thirsty land.

"Electricity may be death dealing lightning, or mercury to carry messages around the globe."

"So the very qualities, which when unregulated, waste and brutalize the life, may when subject to the control of higher self, through the spirit of God become elements of power. Even our bodies must become instruments of righteousness. A cry of fire is heard and the firemen rush to extinguish it. That

POEM RECEIVED WITH GIFT FOR LOCAL CHURCH

An anonymous poem written on a small slip of paper and wrapped about a $5 bill, was received by F. W. Wieseman, chairman of trustees of the official board of the First Methodist church here, Friday.

The verse, entitled, "Dedication."

Pimples Go—Skin Clears Using Invisible Zemo

In a surprisingly short time, such skin troubles as pimples, itching rash and blemishes vanish—the skin clears—when soothing, cooling Zemo is used. And in 20 years this wonderful antiseptic liquid has seldom failed to relieve the most stubborn cases of Eczema. Have invisible, odorless Zemo always on hand to relieve skin irritations instantly. art glass windows, furnished by the Judson studios, and the harmonious design of the mural decoration, done by Lucile Lloyd, lend spiritual atmosphere to the chapel.

Space has been reserved for an organ in the northeast corner and the southeast corner contains a dressing room. Fixtures are made of Philippine wood and mahogany. The chapel will be used for gatherings of the aid society, missionary societies and prayer meetings.

The second floor has the social room, which will have an electric fire in the grate, and is carpeted with gray. Young people's class rooms are off the social hall. High school, junior high school and young people's class rooms are located in part there. Each is equipped with a blackboard, a pinning cork, servadores for class records and all have outdoor light from windows in the rooms.

High school department rooms are situated on the third floor with a kitchenette, as is the junior social room. Five of the 14 class rooms for juniors are on this floor. The junior high workshop room is on the west end with class rooms below on the deck floor.

Junior class rooms are on the fourth floor. It is here that the only Sunday school room without windows is located, but it has a ventilator through the roof.

All auditoriums are to be carpeted and the windows draped. The basement has an exit under the ramp which is an entrance to the chapel above. A vault for church records and the transformer meter are both in the lower division.

An entrance to the waiters' dining room is in the outer hall off the kitchen. The kitchen is equipped with every modern convenience. Steam tables for rapid service were the gifts of the Dorcas society, and two electric ranges valued at $1000 were given the church by the Southern California Edison company. An electric dishwasher was the gift of George Coking, local plumber. Two coffee urns are to be installed. The pie and salad room is built for coolness.

From the basement and dining hall lead two exits, one up to the administration rooms and the other connection into the church building proper.

WINTERSBURG

WINTERSBURG, Mar. 4.—Mrs. Henry Snadell attended the penmanship demonstration in Santa Ana Thursday evening.

Lyle Dean Musgrave was absent from school several days last week as the result of illness.

Mrs. Whitefield, mother of Mrs. Mitchell, of Liberty Park tract, who suffered a stroke of paralysis two weeks ago, is reported very ill.

Mrs. E. M. Fox and Miss Carita Deardorf went to Fullerton Friday to visit M. A. Reynolds, a neighbor who is convalescing from a lingering illness. Mr. Reynolds, who spent many weeks in the hospital, is in the home of a daughter.

Christine Stine, whose birthday falls on February 29 invited her chum, Eva Preston, to spend Thursday night with her. She observed her eleventh birthday.

Mrs. Guy Stine, Christine's mother, planned a little dinner party for the girls, and a birthday cake graced the center of the prettily arranged dinner table.

Phyllis Brush, 4, was the honor guest at a birthday party given by her mother, Mrs. Clinton Brush. Twelve of Phyllis' young friends were present for the occasion and they were entertained at games by Mrs. Brush, who was assisted in her hostess duties by Mrs. Fred Harvey Walker, of Santa Ana Gardens.

The refreshment hour called the children to the dining room, where a color scheme of yellow and white was used, the large white birthday cake bearing four yellow tapers. Flowers, nut cups and napkins were in the same colors. Ice cream and two varieties of cake were served.

Present at the party were Wilma and Nelcie Chapman, Betty and Joyce Moulton, Evelyn Wood, Dorothy Breeding, Mabelle and Violet Walker, Jean and Betty Brush, Edith Brush and the honoree, Phyllis Brush.

E. B. Talley, who attends school in Los Angeles, returned Friday to spend the week end with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Talley.

Mr. and Mrs. Clinton Brush entertained as guests in their home over the week-end, Mr. and Mrs. Men Walker, friends from Alhambra.

Miss Winifred Woodward, teacher of the first grade of the Oceanview school was absent from her room Thursday and Friday as the result of a severe cold.

is negative. The engineer starts the fire which generates the steam that drives the majestic ship across the ocean, but all is under the positive and intelligent control of the engineer.

"Our fires must serve us. Our passions and appetites and ambitions, all the elements in our nature must be transformed by the grace of God and made to serve the higher, nobler, divine life.

"To live soberly then is to hold the physical at the maximum of service, to maintain the body as the agent of the divine spirit.

"Righteously toward all men. We do not we can not live to ourselves. We are mutually interdependent. Selfishness is unrighteousness. To live righteously means to live up to or in conformity with a right standard.

"What does Jesus teach concerning a righteous life? His first controversy is with conformity, conventionalism, externalism and legalism. Christ found that righteousness, instead of being a moral quality, has been converted into a legal status. Hence He came to deliver from the righteousness of conformity and to establish heart-righteousness. "The only man whom Christ called a fool was the man whose only motif in life was to get and hold all he could of worldly goods.

"Righteousness, interpreted by Jesus becomes love, which is the supreme word in christian ethics.

"What does Jesus teach us by word and example concerning a godly life? From the beginning to the end of His earthly career, His one thought was to do His father's will. His was not a divided purpose. "A good life does not consist merely in having set occasions for communion with God, though these are absolutely necessary. No, it is first and last our wills set to do the will of God. We have been sent into the world, as Jesus was, to do the will of the father. From this comes all true prayer, "Thy will be done."

OLD-FASHIONED BOW A navy taffeta flecked in tiny silver diamonds has a pin-tucked sleeveless blouse of off-white chiffon with a large bow of the blue taffeta attached at the point of the V neck reminiscent of the pre-war blouse bows of dark velvet.

Isaiah Prophecy Sermon Topic In Scientist Church

Isaiah's prophecy of the Master, "The Spirit of the Lord God is upon me; because the Lord hath anointed me to preach good tidings unto the meek; he hath sent me to bind up the broken-hearted, to proclaim liberty to the captives, and the opening of the prison to them that are bound," constituted the Golden Text in the Lesson-Sermon on "Christ Jesus" Sunday, in all Christian Science churches, branches of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass.

Among the selections in the Lesson-Sermon were these words of Jesus from the Gospel of John: "Verily, verily, I say unto you, I am the door of the sheep. . . I am the door: by me if any man enter in, he shall be saved, and shall go in and out, and find pasture. The thief cometh not, but for to steal, and to kill, and to destroy: I am come that they might have life, and that they might have it more abundantly;" and a correlative passage from the Scriptures, by Mary Baker Eddy, "Jesus taught the way of life by demonstration, that we may understand how this divine Principle heals the sick, casts out error, and triumphs over death."

A Splendid Edifice for Noble Work

A new sanctuary is to be formally dedicated to those who worship in the formal opening of the enlarged Methodist church at Sixth and French streets. In future years the beauty and durability of its exterior will rest largely in its plastered walls. In the interior the subdued dignity, the cool loftiness of ceiling, the acoustic properties of the auditorium will rest first on the genius of the architect; second on the plastered walls.

Plaster and cement stucco, covering virtually all visible parts of a building save the roof, floor and openings, is a highly important factor today in construction and appearance. All plaster materials in this fine piece of church construction were supplied by

GREEN-BLUE

The newest color to combine with navy blue for a street ensemble is green. A navy frock ensemble has its blue coat lined with green, almost in an emerald shade, uses a green suede belt, purse and binding and trim on a navy felt hat.

SUIT SPRING

This is to be a spring of suits. The little silk suit with pleated, gored or circular skirt and matching unlined cardigan coat will be the most popular, perhaps. But the silk suit of faille, or some other fine silk, that gets a feminine cut to its coat wins the race for chic.

Manning Vaughan, who writes a very interesting column in the Milwaukee Journal, commented recently that the St. Louis Cardinals sent Flint Rhem to Minneapolis so he could keep Rube Benton straight.

"Rhem does not like the assignment," Vaughan writes. "In fact, he says he will permit the national pastime to recline on its spine rather than go up to the land of Norse blonds and burly football players. Rhem feels that he was railroaded out of the major leagues. There is no doubt that he was. He holds no grievance against the Minneapolis club, but is bitter against Branch Rickey and Sab Breardon of the Cardinals, who punished him by this trip to the minors. So he's just going to stay on the family acreage down in old Carolina and tell Messrs. Breardon and Rickey to go where the snowballs melt rapidly and raccoon coats are out of fashion."

"Rhem has no one but himself to blame for his present predicament. He has a major league arm but a minor league mind, and until he learns how to handle himself will probably tarry in the bushes. Like many other young fellows who suddenly come into big money he thought more of pleasure than of work. Flint felt that to quite a baseball two years ago and since then he had tarried where the lights are brightest and the gains the largest. At least that is the story they tell in St. Louis, and they should know whereof they speak."

HAD TO HAVE COMPANY
Rhem was one of the best pitching prospects to arrive in the major leagues for years and he still has the mechanical equipment that should make him a great pitcher in any company. But he has plenty of money, a care-free disposition, a rebellious heart against training rules and, according to one story, the soul of a great Samaritan.

His bosses in St. Louis knew that he was using beverages that were not only prohibited by club rules but forbidden by the laws of the land. He was reprimanded and forgiven many times. And he was fined when sterner measures became necessary, but he got himself in more serious bad will of the owners when he began to invite other members of the club on his parties.

TAKE CARE OF PETE
Rhem and Old Pete Alexander finally formed a social partnership which was dissolved by the Cards. Rhem was called on the carpet and, according to Branch Rickey, vice president of the club, he gave an alibi that qualified for the championship. It could be tied only by the story Virgil Barnes told his boss, John McGraw, in explaining a sprained ankle.

Barnes told McGraw he had slipped in the bath tub that morning and McGraw knew he was occupying a room without.

Rhem, according to Rickey, told him that he had been going out with Alexander so that he could drink. Old Pete's likker and keep him in shape because Alec was a more valuable pitcher to the club.

STORY GONE WRONG
This department has no policy of tearing down good stories. And the story that Pa Stribling and Ma Stribling three days after Bill's birth decided to raise him to be the world's heavyweight prize fighting champion is one swell story. It was swell enough to crash a lot of first pages and it is being revived generally now.

But we have it from a prominent attorney in the Striblings' home town (who doesn't want his name used) that Pa suggested it years after Willie was born. And that most powerful persuasion had to be used on Ma before she would consent.

Bambino In Training At Yank's Camp

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 4.—With his golf clubs laid aside and his vacation over, Babe Ruth turned his thoughts to baseball today as he joined the world champion New York Yankees for his first workout of the season.

Ruth appears in good physical condition and is looking forward to a highly successful year not only for himself, but the Yankees as well.

"I believe we'll win again," Ruth said. "Washington and Detroit are the only two teams who look better to me and I don't think either has improved enough to beat us."

S. A. GRAPPLERS TO GO AGAINST POETS
Whittier high school will bring its wrestling team to Santa Ana high school tomorrow to engage the Saints in the second league matches of the current season. The local matmen lost the first match to Long Beach, 25 to 10.

Captain Ernie Cardwell will be ready to grapple after being ill and he is favored to win the 135-pound division. Captain Harvey Greenleaf should easily manhandle his 125-pound rival as he has all others. His only obstacle is weight and if Greenleaf can't get down to 125, Max Cruzen will take his place. In this event, Greenleaf will wrestle in the 135-pound class and either Roy De Smet or Cardwell will be in the 145-pound division.

Dallas Reichstein, a new wrestler, will enter the 155-pound weight class and "Bud" Hartman will engage the 175-pound visitor. Lyn Hart is the 112-pounder, and Hattsuma Yamada the 118-pounder.

KEESEY, BATES BREAK UP FAIR CAMP OPENERS

"Yipping" Bill Rodgers began "yipping" at his Portland Beavers today in an effort to iron out some of the defects that appeared in the mechanism of the Portland Coast leaguers over the past week-end when they were more or less fortunate to pull two extra inning ball games out of the fire at the Orange County Fair grounds training camp.

The Beavers beat Art Sullivan's Orange County Merchants, 12 to 11, in 10 innings yesterday after the home guard apparently had won the decision in the ninth, and they had to go 12 rounds Saturday to get an 11 to 7 victory over the National Baseball School because a batsman that hit out of order slugged a ball over the fence and tied the score in the ninth.

They were both typical training camp contests, plenty of pitchers going to the hilltop and plenty of balls going over the garden wall, both sides leveling on the short center field barrier with the resulting manufacture of 10 home runs, five each day.

Hall Unsteady at Outset

Portland got to an unsteady "Rube" Hall for seven runs in the first two innings of the tussle with the Countians and needed all that spot when Sullivan's hirings concentrated on the offerings of "Lefty Bob" Shanklin and Guy Cooper in the eighth and ninth. Manager Rodgers finally had to rush in one of his ace gunners, Curt Fullerton, to quell the uprising.

Hall settled down after giving the Beavers seven scores in the first and second and hurled one-hit ball for his remaining four frames of turret occupancy. The Countians got three of them back in the seventh on a base on balls and successive homers by Hershberger and Adams. Gale Staley's second four-base knock, coming with Cronin on, made the Beaver lead 9 to 3 but the Countians knocked Shanklin out of the box in the eighth and belted Cooper savagely in a rally that produced seven runs and gave them a 10 to 9 lead. Nelson, who succeeded Hall in the seventh, wild-pitched home Portland's tying run in the last of the eighth.

The Countians got a tough break in the first of the ninth or they probably would have won. Herman doubled to start with and Callan smacked a line drive that was obviously inside the third base line but Umpire Stagg called it a foul. Herman had scored on the drive and he had to return to second where he eventually perished.

Keesey Breaks Up Game

Orange County scored in the tenth on Strunk's error and singles by Burger and Frühling only to have the Beavers come back in their half with two when Fullerton was safe on Adams' error and Cronin, Staley and Keesey all singled, Keesey's bringing in Fullerton and Cronin and breaking up the long battle.

The Saturday imbroglio was a maddening one with Portland always in front until the ninth when Costello forgot to bat and let Segrist single and score ahead of Kornat's second home run for the runs that tied thing at 7-all.

Thus the clubs went through the tenth and eleventh, Portland breaking through with four runs in the last of the twelfth. Jahn singled, Staley doubled, and Wuestling walked, doubling the bags, and then the Oregonians are trying to make Charley Bates, the outfielder whom into a catcher, slapped the pumpkin over the fence for a regular Frank Merriwell finish.

It is too early in the training camp series to gain any lasting impressions, of course, but the Beavers looked like they would need some help before they are ready to be a contender in a Class AA race.

Staley, Cronin Look O.K.

The club looks pretty well fixed at second and third bases, however, with Staley and Cronin both hitting and fielding well. Art Jahn certainly figures to help in left field. Bates looked like a real receiver and it may be that he will fill that gaping hole satisfactorily while the club is making him into a good backstop it is sacrificing a sweet fielding and throwing outfielder.

The two games marked the debut of "Bullet Joe" Bush as an outfielder after 17 years of major league pitching during which he took part in five world series. Bush always was a powerful stick-er and he is capitalizing on that skill now. It may keep him in baseball for several more seasons because he admits that his old throwing arm isn't what it used to be.

The Beavers will be competi-

SANTA ANA NOW CLOSE THIRD IN CHASE FOR CHAMPIONSHIP OF INTERCLUB GOLF LEAGUE

The country clubs of Santa Ana, Hacienda and Long Beach were so closely bunched today that a blanket would cover them all in their fight for the championship of Group No. 8 in the Southern California Interclub Golf League. Hacienda and Long Beach were tied for the lead with 36 points each with Santa Ana in close pursuit with 34.

Santa Ana made up considerable lost ground yesterday when it made a clean sweep of seven matches from Royal Palms on the local course while Potrero was surprising with a 4 to 3 defeat of Hacienda.

The Santa Anans had comparatively easy competition, the first flight match being the only one in which victory was endangered. The quartet came to the eighteenth green all square and all four players, Ed Holmes and Mark Lacy of Santa Ana and Dorsen and Ray of Royal Palms, were putting for birdie 4's. Holmes was the only one to get down and his shot gave the match to Santa Ana, one up.

The results: Lacey and Holmes (S.A.) defeated Dorsen and Ray (R.P.) 1 up. Bemis and Robinson (S.A.) defeated LeGrant and G. Hickman (R.P.) 5 and 4.

Farnsworth and Wallace (S.A.) defeated B. Hickman and Duwker (R.P.) 3 and 2. McDonald and Curry (S.A.) defeated Fox and Nichols (R.P.) 7 and 5.

Shields and Mater (S.A.) defeated Seaver and Davidson (R.P.) 7 and 6. Rose and Almsworth (S.A.) defeated Messall and McDonald (R.P.) 5 and 4.

Way and Graves (S.A.) defeated Adamson and Howard (R.P.) 4 and 2. Santa Ana has two more chances to pick up on Hacienda and Long Beach. Captain Mater's golfers meet Potrero next and then wind up their season against Hacienda here.

W. F. Kogler outshot a field of Lorenz cup players by five strokes at the Santa Ana Country club.

ON THE TRAIL OF BIG LEAGUERS

TAMPA, Fla.—The Washington Senators today had only two undesignated players, "Goose" Goslin and Sam Jones. Fred Marberry, pitcher, came to terms with President Griffith after a two-hour conference.

AVON PARK, Fla.—All eyes were on Carey Selph, rookie from the Houston Texas league club who is slated to play second base, when the St. Louis Cardinals turned out for practice today. Selph reported yesterday.

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla.—"Rabbit" Maranville is almost certain to play shortstop for the Boston Braves this season as a result of Dr. Eddie Farrell's refusal to accept the terms offered him by President-Manager Emil Fuchs.

WINTERHAVEN, Fla.—Manager Burt Shotton is making every effort to have the Philadelphia Phillies' pitchers in condition by the time the regulars arrive here. The club practiced on Sunday yesterday for the first time in history.

FORT MYERS, Fla.—The Philadelphia Athletics faced a hard workout today in preparation for the opening of the exhibition game scheduled against the St. Louis Cardinals at Avon Park Thursday. It will be the first inter-league exhibition game of the season. The A's have 25 exhibition games scheduled.

SAN ANTONIO, Tex.—Manager John McGraw was worried today over the absence of Bill Terry, first baseman. Terry is four days overdue.

ORLANDO, Fla.—George Kelly, first baseman, was to indulge in his first workout of the 1929 spring training season here today with the Cincinnati Reds. Kelly arrived yesterday, leaving Charley Dresner, third baseman, as the only regular infielder not in camp.

La Barba To Box Pladner Late In May

PARIS, March 4.—Emil (Spider) Pladner, European flyweight champion who strengthened his claim to the world 112-pound title by knocking out Frankie Genaro, New York Italian, in the first round of their bout Saturday, has signed to meet Fidel La Barba, of California, former flyweight titleholder, under the promotion of Jeff Dickson here the last week in May.

Pladner knocked out the National Boxing association's titleholder in 58 seconds of the first round, dropping him with a left to the solar plexus. The American judge ruled the blow foul, but the other two judges and Referee Henry Bernstein said the blow was fair and Genaro was counted out.

S. A. ATHLETES IN INTERCLASS TRACK FINALS

Seniors, juniors and sophomores were to fight it out today for The Register's cup representing the interclass track championship at Santa Ana high school. Preliminaries were held last Monday.

Rivalry is intensely keen this year. For the first time, the sophomores have a chance to win and the upperclassmen won't have a walkaway as before. Several members of the varsity are sophs, Jim Daneri, Ralph Gordon and Paul Jacques being just a few of the outstanding performers.

Norman Paul, junior captain, will give his class a big boost with about 15 points, inasmuch as he should win with ease the broad jump, the 220 and shot put. He is probably the best broad jumper in the Coast Preparatory league, beating 21 feet consistently. He runs the 220 close to 23 flat and can push the iron pellet 44 feet regularly.

Alfred Poulsen should take some points for the seniors in the weight events. He gets around 100 feet in the discus and will press Paul in the shot. The high jump should also offer some good competition. Elwood Lindley, junior, and Paul Jacques, sophomore, both have cleared 5 feet 6 inches.

Lindley has been playing center on the champion Class B hoop squad but his short stay on the track netted him a tie for second at Long Beach.

Daneri, Lloyd Nuzum and Carl Schoenberg are all closely bunched in the 440. Daneri won the trials but his two competitors were so closely bunched that anyone may win today.

Each class is allowed to enter one extra man in every event. This will take care of the Class "Bees" and other athletes that were unable to compete in the preliminaries. Russell Sullivan, "Bee" forward, may enter the pole vault and if he does, should win it for the seniors. The highest jump last week was 5 feet and Sullivan is capable of 10 feet, 6 inches.

Santa Ana will meet Glendale on the Saint cinderpath either Friday or Saturday in its second league dual meet.

FIVE READY TO PLAY TRAINING CAMP BATTLES

By GEORGE KIRKSEY

(United Press Staff Correspondent)

NEW YORK, March 4.—With the arrival of the Boston Red Sox at their camp at Bradenton, Fla. today, all of the major league clubs are in training for the opening of the baseball season April 16.

Five major league clubs are far enough advanced in their training to begin exhibition schedules this week. The Chicago White Sox will swing into action Friday after only a week's practice.

The New York Giants are perhaps in better condition than any of the other major league teams at this stage unless it is the Chicago Cubs who started training at Glendale, Ind. only two days after the Giants began work at San Antonio, Texas.

The Giants' first exhibition game will be played with the University of Texas at Austin, Texas, Wednesday.

Thursday, the first exhibition game between two major league teams will see the Athletics and Cardinals opposing each other at Avon Park, Fla.

The Cubs will play the Los Angeles Pacific Coast league club at Los Angeles Friday and the White Sox will meet the Dallas Texas league club at Dallas the same day.

The Cincinnati Reds will meet the Athletics at Miami, Fla., Saturday, the Giants will play the San Antonio Texas league club at Laredo, Tex., and the White Sox will continue their series with Dallas.

National league clubs have 193 exhibition games scheduled this spring and American league clubs 198, including four second team games. Many of these games are inter-league contests.

Several major league clubs are still bothered with holdouts, two of the most serious being the Waner brothers, who are demanding $35,000 before joining the Pittsburgh Pirates. Paul, who was voted the most valuable player in the National league in 1927, is said to be demanding $20,000 and Lloyd $15,000.

Two other prominent holdouts are "Dazzy" Vance and Doug McWeeney, Brooklyn star pitchers. Vance is demanding $25,000. (He drew $20,000 last season. McWeeney has arrived at Clearwater, Fla., to talk terms with Uncle Wilbert Robinson, but has no signed.

"Goose" Goslin, American league batting champion, is causing Cliff Griffith considerable worry because he has not signed.

Paolino In Line For Chicago Bout
CHICAGO, March 4.—Promotee James C. Mullen announced today he would match Paolino Uscudun with the winner of the bout between Tom Heeney and Otto Von Foret. Heeney and Von Foret will fight March 12 and Mullen said he would hold the Uscudun fight in April.

TRIBE DEFEATS PORTLAND. 9-7 IN CAMP GAME

SAN CLEMENTE, March 4.—Those traditional rivals, Portland and Seattle met here yesterday, honors going to Bill Klepper's troupe. The Indians downed the Beavers, 9 to 7 in a hectic slugging fray that had the pitchers ducking and the tongues of the outfielders hanging.

Portland's only run and hit off Colliard during the three innings he worked came with Dennis Williams' home run in the third. Borreani pounded out one for Seattle in the sixth. Climaxing the four-base collection was Tomlin's mighty wallop to deep center in the seventh inning with the sacks filled. That poke put the score at its final figure, and had the Tribe hustling to maintain the lead during the last two frames.

The defensive work of Almada in center and of Taylor at first outshone the slugging spurge. Almada roamed all over the park to haul down tough chances and Taylor saved the other infielders half a dozen errors with his great reach and expert glove handling.

California Takes Basketball Title

SEATTLE, March 4.—The University of California today held the Pacific Coast conference basketball championship as a result of two victories over the University of Washington Friday and Saturday.

The Bears came through the season without a defeat in the Southern division and then met Washington, undefeated in Northern play.

The first game was a 48 to 31 victory for the Bears and the second was won, 30 to 27. California's uncanny ability in shooting and a system of passes baffled the Huskies.

TAR BURNS

The first fire in Orange in 123 years occurred Saturday, when a kettle of tar caught fire. Little damage was done.

BASEBALL STUDENTS TRIM WESTMINSTER

In the greatest pitching duel of the Westminster season, Jess Orendorff's National Baseball School took the measure of Roy Head's Westminster Aviators, 2 to 0, at the Midway City airport yesterday.

Both sides were limited to one hit, Willingham getting Westminsters' in the first inning and Kolstad making the Scholars' in the ninth when "Fuzzy" Page seemed to have a no-hit game in the bag.

The Scholars got their first run in the seventh on errors and their other in the ninth on a pass, an error and Kolstad's hit. The score:

MISS U. S. A.

Austin Jewell

The World's Highest Paid Short Story Writer

By FANNIE HURST

Author of "Humoresque",
"A President Is Born"

I was one of those situations, which, beginning the size of a pea, gathered moss at such an astonishingly rapid rate that presently all those connected with it were aghast at the magnitude of what they had done.

The Midtown Gazette, on which young Tom Powell was a reporter and to which Miss Amy Stricker subscribed, had started a popularity contest, the winning young lady to be the fortunate recipient of a tour around the world.

Of course, off-hand, one would have told you that Amy Stricker, so blonde in her beauty, so bland in her blue-eyedness, so tender in the springtime quality of her youth, was the most popular girl in town. But popularity in the town of Orlando was one thing and popularity in a state which contained at least six cities of far greater population and size was another. In any event, before the township of Orlando realized it and with interest and competition running high, here was little Amy Stricker, nineteen, assistant librarian in the town's somewhat makeshift library, piling up votes in a fashion that flabberasted and delighted the amazed and amused coupon-clippers.

Of course, the fine hand of Tom Powell was to be detected behind much of the activity. From the moment that the Midtown Gazette announced its policy of staging the conspicuous and dramatic contest, this young fellow, alert, up-and-coming and full of the fine fettle of young journalism, carried on his campaign for placing the victory in the hands of his lovely fiancée, Miss Amy Stricker.

FOR three months, with comparatively no local competition, but with dangerous runners-up from the larger cities of the state, the war for popularity waged and circulation climbed. Miss Stricker's little desk at the library became the mecca of turbulent, coupon-clipping scenes. The little frame house on Ludlow Street, where she lived with a married sister, sharing a tiny room with two half-grown nieces, was electric with excitement. In fact, the only calm aspect of this frenzied fight for the spectacular reward, was the small, beautiful blonde figure of Amy Stricker. She was as radiant as a lovely morning, her blue eyes never bluer, her smile never whiter. They said of her locally that she was a Mary Pickford, at Mary's zenith.

Youngsters adored her and followed her in little clumps. Old ladies toddled to the library for the benefit of the gentle manner she had with them. Amy had more beaux than there were chairs in the Ludlow Street house to accommodate them. Tom Powell, who had worked his way through Northwestern University, was regarded the luckiest fellow in town. He wanted Amy to be the luckiest girl in town.

ON the day of Amy's victory of eight thousand votes over her closest competitor, the town went wild. It was a miniature Lindbergh day. Factories and business houses blew their mid-day whistles and business was literally suspended for the hour that Amy Stricker, mounted on a paper float, rode through the town, bowing her sweet acknowledgments to the plaudits of crowds that were almost entirely composed of men, women and children with whom she had grown up.

No royal bride was ever more pompously prepared for ceremony than Amy in those weeks preceding her departure for the first lap of her ninety-day tour of the world. She was the community's interest, the community's pride, the community's responsibility. Ladies' societies met for the sole purpose of sewing Amy's travelling things. Local shops vied with one another in supplying Miss U. S. A. with paraphernalia. Tom Powell worked his eager hands to the bone, so to speak, seeing to it that the whole general picture was one of magnitude and scope worthy of his fiancée.

AND then there entered into this picture aspects of the human equation which were to shock and disappoint the community beyond anything that had ever happened in its midst. A momentary shock, it is true, which later was to be superseded by a homely kind of feeling of affection for the misdemeanor of which Miss Stricker and Mr. Powell had been guilty.

Two weeks before Amy's contemplated departure on a flower-decked, bunting-draped train, Tom Powell, seated in her stuffy little parlor one evening, caught her in his arms and told her that he could not bear to let her go, that he was sure to lose her to a vast and admiring world, that he had tried to be unselfish in giving her to the world, but that his heart was sick within him with what he had done.

Amy in turn, with her cheek against his shoulder, sobbed out her nostalgia; begged him to release her from the vast project of taking this tour alone; clung to him; needed him. The next morning, Amy and Tom went off to a town twenty miles away and were married.

The newspaper, the town and the state gave a large grunt of disgust and turned to the second runner-up, a contestant in a large city who had fallen short of eight thousand votes of Amy's acclaim, to take the role of Miss U. S. A. Excitement fell away from the threshold of Amy Stricker Powell over night. She became any little bride in any little town, married to any little struggling fellow. They set up housekeeping in three rooms of a two-family cottage on a scrubby street at the end of the town. The community was irreparably disappointed in Amy and manifested itself by leaving her severely alone.

For the first few months of the marriage, the town's resentment lingered, and then the case of Miss U. S. A. was forgotten. The Tom Powells became comfortably a part of local life. Amy took up her household duties and Tom pursued his work. There were the usual struggles, the usual happinesses, the usual ambitions, desires and hopes.

The first five years of their marriage, Tom was promoted twice, Amy gained fifteen pounds, and three babies, all of them healthy and vigorous, were born. If the perfection of Amy's bloom faded, the little bland, blue-quality of her eyes burned on. She was beautiful because she was happy.

AND then catastrophe came. The eldest boy almost succumbed to meningitis. Amy fell off a ladder while painting her kitchen cupboard and had a bad time with a sprained ankle. Then Tom, out of a clear sky, took to his bed for a period of eighteen months with a hip disease that had gradually to correct itself. Tom's disability pinched the little household down to a state of actual deprivation.

Amy resumed her position at the library. During those long, dreary months she kept the little household going, maintained Tom in his wheel chair in dainty and immaculate fashion, took two of the children to school on the way to the library, did her marketing on the way home, prepared meals, accomplished much of her scrubbing and window-washing after dark, waxed floors on her knees, did some of her card-cataloguing for the library at home, exercised Tom on his bad leg and tidied over the finances without having to resort to borrowing.

"There goes Miss U. S. A.," was the way the townspeople usually pointed her out to strangers. That came literally to be true.

Tom, when he kissed her and fondled her, as if he could never leave off expressing his gratitude, always thought of her in his heart as typical of Miss U. S. A.

New M. E. Church Building Dedicated By Bishop Burns

PRESENT DAY MATERIALISM HIT IN SERMON

Bishop Charles Wesley Burns officiated at the dedication ritual of the new Educational-Social unit of the First Methodist church here yesterday. He is one of the younger and most popular bishops of the service.

Born of Scotch parentage and now in his second quarter of the San Francisco area, his work includes all foreign languages on the Pacific coast and all Oriental work from the Mississippi river to the Philippine Islands.

The service yesterday was the 153d dedicatory ritual at which he has presided during five years. He said in part:

"It is the task of the church to socialize the spiritual life of the church and to spiritualize the social life."

"Our significant American boast is quantitative not qualitative. We are becoming illiterate in the spiritual value of anything. We think in terms of cost and place price tags on everything. Here is materialism, vulgar, degrading, corroding."

The word pictures and Biblical scenes brought to mind by the eloquent descriptions of the bishop will long be remembered by members of the congregation yesterday. He told the story of Percy Ainsworth to illustrate materialistic philosophy and gave dramatic glimpses of the story of Judas, who beguiled a gift to Jesus. The scenes of the betrayal and the hanging on a gallows tree by a girdle, the sinister effacement of the soul of a man with a price tag, were of tragic power.

MRS. BROWN TELLS STORY OF MANNA

Holy Communion service was given at the Four Square Gospel Lighthouse of this city, by the Rev. Mrs. Vera O. Brown. Her sermon subject was "God's What Is It," and she said in part:

"God's what is it, is the manna that came down in the wilderness for the children of Israel. They had left Egypt, the land of bondage, and were journeying to Canaan. They were without food and cried murmuring to God. 'God heard their cry and sent the manna from heaven that their hunger might be satisfied. 'There are many precious thoughts gained from the manna. First, it came from heaven, of God and not of man. So Christ came from the Ivory Palace and tabernacled among us; second, the manna was of supernatural appearance—Christ's birth was supernatural. He was born and conceived of the Holy ghost; third, they gathered what they had not seen before and when we leave worldly sin and come to Christ we are saved and find that we have never seen before; fourth, they gathered manna fresh daily and we must appropriate Christ daily in our lives—this necessitates consecration to Him; fifth, each man gathered for himself and his own household and this speaks of the personal touch with Christ; sixth, there was enough for all who were hungry and this proves Christ satisfies all and is no respecter of persons; and seven, the manna satisfied their hunger—and can satisfy every man who comes to Him."

PESSIMISM HIT IN SERMON BY REV. M'PEAK

The Rev. Wilbert H. McPeak, minister of the United Presbyterian church, used for his Sunday morning talk a portion of the verse from Joshua 13:1, "there remaineth yet very much land to be possessed."

Explaining his subject, the Rev. Mr. McPeak said in part: "There are two ways this text might be read. It may be read in a discouraged, hopeless, pessimistic tone of voice; indicating that there is nothing ahead but certain defeat and disaster. They may be read in a positive, challenging, victorious tone of voice, as if to say, 'to be sure there is much land to be possessed, but we can possess it.' That was evidently the voice that spoke these words. A voice that had the ring of victory in it, that called the men of Israel to the colors."

"Put these words into the mouths of certain persons in America today, 'there remaineth yet very much land to be possessed in America for truth and righteousness' and they will speak them with a long face and a discouraged tone of voice indicating that they believe the task is hopeless. They will point to the corruption in great American cities—Philadelphia, Chicago, Los Angeles; the disregard for law and order; the contempt for the 18th amendment; bootlegging and high-jacking; the alleged carelessness of the modern youth; the increase of divorce; the departure of the Church from the ancient orthodoxities. These and many other things are pointed out as indications that we are on the high road to destruction."

"No sensible person will deny that there are many evil men; forces that are deadly; influences that are bad. There are things even in the noblest enterprises which we deplore and if there was no message from the eternal God for this day an hour, all of us might well join the International Order of Crepe Hangers. But God is in the heavens. If it be true that all is not right with the world, the battle has not been lost. It is about time for those who have fallen a victim to the plague of pessimism to let their membership in the International Order of Crepe Hangers lapse and get back into line with the saints who have come marching down across the centuries with banners flying; with heads up; with a song; with a shout of victory—and in worse times than these—for they belonged to the victorious army of God."

'HAPPINESS IN JESUS' TOPIC OF REV. OWINGS

The Rev. Harry Evan Owings, pastor of the First Baptist church, discussed the "Happiness of Jesus" in his sermon last night. He approached the subject in the following manner:

"Jesus must have been a man of boundless happiness. While looking death in the face he spoke words like this to his choice friends. 'These things speak I unto you that my joy may be in you and that your joy may be full.' We may well ask of him the sources of this remarkable spirit of happiness. 'Under four conditions we find this joy of Jesus in evidence. First, when he was uttering the words just quoted, he found his happiness in the consciousness of doing consistently what his Father wanted him to do and knowing that he was dwelling in that Father's love. Nothing makes one so happy as being like God in one's character and spirit. Happiness comes to Jesus, to John or Peter, or to John Jones of our own day when he knows that in spirit he is in harmony with the character and wish of God."

"Second, Jesus found that happiness was a matter of the inner spirit entirely independent of the outer conditions. 'Happy are those that are poor in spirit, those that are pure heart, those that hunger and thirst for righteousness, those that are makers of peace, etc.' Even though he had no place to lay his head and call his home, even though he could not be called prosperous, he knew the secret of happiness in the cultivation of the spiritual things, the life within. Many illustrations of the truth of his position come to us in modern life."

"Third, Jesus found happiness in forgetting himself through his constant ministering to others. He seems to tell us that happiness is a by-product. We find it not by a direct search for it but by forgetting all about our own happiness in our concern for the happiness of other people. In healing the sick, helping the distressed and unfortunate, and restoring the wandering he drew deeply upon the well-springs of happiness."

"Fourth, Jesus found happiness by going the way of duty even when it meant paying the terrible price that was involved in enduring the cross. Yet for the 'joy that was set before him' he endured the cross and despised its shame. Not by avoiding or evading duty by embracing it no matter how hard or how much it costs do we find the full happiness of life. Here is Jesus' secret of happiness and he passes it on to all generations of men to try out to see whether abundant life and happiness do not lie this way."

HOME TRAINING URGED IN TALK BY REV. HATTER

"Not for this day alone are these sermons on The Ten Commandments being given but for our children and their children, for upon them rests the future of our country," declared the Rev. W. J. Hatter, of the Church of the Messiah yesterday morning as he announced the text for the discourse, "Honor Thy Father and Thy Mother."

"There must be a tightening of home influences, a teaching of the commandments or this wonderful land of ours will fall. In the home must the child be trained, not in the schools. It is not right to ask the teachers to train your children. Discipline should be carried on in the home. Obedience should be exacted in the home. There is too much luxury, too much hurry, too little time for family life, no time for God. Mothers are asked to do too much in a social way. It is often the case that to be socially popular means that home and children are neglected. The few minutes of family worship are no longer features of our daily life. We have no time. Yet no religion and no discipline taught in the home mean atheism in religion and anarchy in politics, a blow at the foundation of the government of this United States of ours. A man who does not give the time to training his sons as they should be trained is cheating the state, he is cheating this great nation."

"Laxity in the sanctity of the marriage vows is contributing to disobedience and indifference to other laws. Fatherhood and motherhood are the greatest professions in the world. The fathers and mothers of today are determining the future of this glorious country and our children and their children will rightly hold us responsible. 'Back to God' is where this nation must get. History is full of facts as to what happened to the nations which forsook God, and unless we want this wonderful nation to join them on the rubbish heap we must teach respect for law, obedience to law, honor for authority. 'It is useless for a man to send his boy to Sunday school, while he tells him to get out of his way so that he can go to the country club."

"The first commandment with a promise, the first one which tells of duty towards those near and dear. It binds the family together and calls upon the children to honor father and mother. It places responsibility upon father and mother and bids them train the citizens of the future in the home, the very arch of the keystones of this and every other nation. The same sermon could be preached in every nation of the world today and what it would mean to the world."

term is that of A. H. Brown, principal of the board.

A similar election is to be held for the Brea grammar school board. C. R. Merrifield's term expires and to date no announcement of a candidate for the vacancy on this board has been made.

In Brea the election board will consist of the Rev. W. B. Corlett, inspector; Mrs. Martha Remp and Mrs. Beatrice Livingston. At Olin-da the polls will be in charge of Mrs. Catherine Vanatta, Mrs. Nettie Richards and Mrs. J. Elliott.

STRONG APPEAL OF RELIGION IS SERMON TOPIC

"Religion's Strongest Appeal" was the subject of the sermon at the First Congregational church yesterday morning. The subject was suggested by the words of Jesus as recorded in the Fourth Gospel—"Believe me because of what I do." The Rev. Mr. Schrock said in part:

"Not many people are won by the philosophical or theological appeal. Not many, even, are able to comprehend the reality of the experience of the mystical genius. There are only a few like St. Francis or Rufus M. Jones. But most people can understand the appeal of action. 'Actions speak louder than words' says the old proverb and the philosopher Locke always thought the actions of men the best interpreters of their thoughts. 'Believe me because of what I do' was the appeal of Jesus and it is the strongest appeal the Christian of today, or the Christian church, can make. The early missionaries won their first converts from heathenism, not by the logic of their arguments, but by the evidence of their lives. The Christian religion will commend itself today by the kind of lives it inspires rather than by the soundness of its theology."

"What kind of attitude, spirit, deeds, has the world a right to expect from the Christian people and the Christian church? I know of no better answer to that question than the attitudes and spirit and deeds of Jesus as they are recorded in the Gospel of John."

"Jesus was concerned about the hungry—about the physical needs of men—and he did something about it. And the modern Christian, or the church, that has not that concern of Jesus for the physical needs of humanity has failed to understand, or rightly follow Jesus. Again, Jesus was concerned about the moral wrecks. He was far more interested in restoring them than he was in punishing them. 'Neither do I condemn thee, go and sin no more,' was his attitude. What would

Evangelist Fills Pulpit In Church Of The Nazarene

By the invitation of the pastor, the Rev. E. U. Harding, who was called away for revival meetings, the pulpit of the Church of the Nazarene was occupied Sunday by Evangelist Henson, of the International Federation of Christian Workers.

His theme was "The Indwelling Christ," taking for his text the words of Jesus found in St. John 14:20, "At that day ye shall know that I am in my Father, and ye in Me, and I in you."

This statement of the Master sets forth the place He went to prepare for all the children of God in this dispensation. Following this first division of the subject, other Scriptures were produced to show what God had proposed and provided for us "In Christ" when He gave Him on the cross, a sacrifice for all; "things new and old" were brought forth from God's great treasury of truth, the Bible, showing what God does in and for man today who has "the faith once for all delivered to the saints;" also how we may all possess this "faith of the Son of God" today.

CHAPLIN MUCH BETTER, REPORT

HOLLYWOOD, March 4.—(UP)—Charley Chaplin, III from pneumonia poisoning complicated by intestinal influenza, was reported as greatly improved today. His physician expressed the belief that the screen actor would be able to return to work late next week.

Jesus do with that great company of prisoners in our county jail? Would he keep them locked up for punishment or would he put them out on a great county farm and throw about them the influences that would help them 'go and sin no more'?

"Jesus was concerned about the people who sorrowed. 'Jesus wept,' and he wept out of sympathy for his sorrowing friends. The appeal of the sympathetic heart will win more people than the unanswerable logic of any system of theology."

JESUS' POWER EXPLAINED BY REV. SCHMOOCK

"The Man Whose Latter State Is Worse Than the First" was the subject of an address given by the Rev. William Schmoock, pastor of the Trinity Lutheran church, Sunday.

Excerpts from the sermon follow: "In Luke 11, 14-23 the Lord reveals to us the sad case of one whose latter state is worse than the first. The man is a type portrayed for our warning."

"Jesus had shown His marvelous power by casting out a demon from a man who had been possessed. The Lord had again proven Himself the 'Stronger One.' But what of the unclean spirit? He is pictured as walking through dry (waterless) places, seeking rest, but not finding it. As there is no rest to the wicked, Isa. 57:21, so the demon finds no rest in the wicked. It would afford him some relief if he could find a redeemed soul whom he hopes to ruin. Therefore he resolves: 'I will return to my house,' to the man whom he had possessed. The man, in whose heart Christ had taken up His abode after casting the devil, is with Christ no more; he tries to be neutral, and therefore is already against Christ, Luke 11:23."

"In his former haunt the unclean spirit finds many fine things to ruin and destroy anew. Cunningly he establishes his kingdom more firmly than before. He takes with him 'seven other spirits more wicked than himself; and they enter in and dwell there; and the last state of that man is worse than the first."

"The Lord here portrays individuals like Saul and Judas Iscariot. In Matthew Jesus Himself applies the case to the wicked generation of His time. They had been forewarned of the disastrous results of their apostasy. He tells them that neutrality in spiritual matters is impossible. But they did not heed! they did not make the Holy Spirit a permanent guest to replace the evil spirit Jesus had cast out."

HEARTS MUST BE KEPT SOFT. SAYS MINISTER

Sunday morning the Communion sermon in the Richland Avenue Methodist church, of which the Rev. O. W. Reinius, is minister, was from the text, "And every man that hath this hope in him, purifieth himself."

The pastor said: "From the viewpoint of religion, as we grow older, life has the tendency to become simpler, it becomes indeed a very simple thing. We begin to see that the 'needful thing' is to keep our hearts soft and open to the voices that call us toward the eternal world of the good. Also—as we grow older, we see that the one thing that we need to be afraid of is not so much that we shall fall into grievous sins, but rather that we shall lose a certain tenderness of soul, a certain freshness of view, and a dimness of our sense of God."

"The danger is that we shall become case-hardened and habituated to a certain average and conventional idea of ourselves. That life will rob us of our wings and that we shall get past feeling and end at best in a certain monotonous correctness. The effect of life which is most to be dreaded is that we become stale."

Happy Wishes Voiced In New Phase of House-Warming

Expressing their wishes for a happy new home in a literal amplification of a "house warming," members of the Past Presiding association of the Daughters of Union Veterans, and of the Past Commanders' association of the Sons of Union Veterans, with their respective husbands and wives, staged a delightful party late in the week, for Mr. and Mrs. Ed Parker in their home on Yorba street.

The hosts have been in the charming new home only a few weeks, and the party, planned without their knowledge, was the first gathering of the military organization to be held there. In planning the actual house-warming, each member of the little group had been provided with a billet of wood, which was laid on the blazing hearth to the accompaniment of a happily expressed wish for "health, wealth and happiness."

The guests also had their plans perfected for the evening of games, and for the refreshments of ice cream and cake with which the friendly affair came to a conclusion.

In the party were the surprised hosts, Mr. and Mrs. Parker, Mr. and Mrs. George S. Smith, Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Miller, Mr. and Mrs. J. Moore, Mr. and Mrs. S. L. Carpenter, Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Brayton, Judge and Mrs. William H. Thomas, Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Chapman, Mrs. Maude Sutton, Miss Bertha Belt and Walter Somerby.

Bishop Charles Burns Is Complimented

Bishop Charles Wesley Burns of Los Angeles was complimented yesterday morning at a breakfast held for him at St. Ann's Inn by the finance committee for the new Educational-Social unit of the First Methodist Episcopal church.

The Rev. Dr. George A. Warner, pastor of the First Methodist church here, who was in Los Angeles yesterday morning where he visited his wife who is ill at the Hollywood hospital, accompanied Bishop Burns to Santa Ana for the breakfast.

Those present for the affair included Bishop Burns, O. H. Barr, A. J. Lasby, F. W. Wiesseman, W. D. Baker, J. S. Smart, W. A. Taylor, J. F. Burke, Dr. Lewis Gillies and the Rev. Dr. Warner.

Entertaining Program Heard at Meeting Of Circle

An interesting feature of the recent meeting of the Shiloh circle was the reading of a number of poems by Mrs. Rachel Talbot.

Mrs. Talbot, who is 87 years of age, gave "Our Flag and What It Cost to Save It." The theme of the reading was woven around the soldiers of the Civil war and the World war.

She also gave a reading which she had written especially for the women of the G.A.R. Other numbers on the program were musical selections by Comrade Spencer and Mrs. Grey; readings by Comrade Hiram Cleveland and Comrade Franklin. Mrs. Della Bishop recited "At Lincoln's Tomb." The program closed with a jig executed by Comrade Francisco, Comrade Spencer furnishing the music for the dance.

About 45 were present at the dinner which preceded the program.

Americanization Work In New York Is Described

The importance of Americanization work was brought before members of the Santa Ana chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, Saturday afternoon at their monthly meeting, held at the home of Mrs. O. M. Robbins, 930 Lacy street.

Miss Mary Etta Tibbets of Laguna Beach, who was at one time principal of the New York school in which the first Americanization work took place, gave a colorful picture of the school and told of the necessity for concerted effort in bringing the many foreign children into the fold of Americanism. In the school where Miss Tibbets was principal, 33 1/2 per cent of the pupils were Italian, noted for their lack of ambition, and the remaining students included the Russian Jews, bright and ambitious, the Turks, who learned with exceptional ease, Belgians, Germans, Roumanians, Hungarians, and a few French and Japanese.

She explained the ease with which socialism grows among the foreign population, especially the young men and women. With special training in Americanism while these people are still in school, they may become the most loyal of America's citizens.

Mrs. Golden Norwood who is in charge of the Americanization work in Santa Ana cited a number of interesting incidents that have come to her attention through her work and she gave a brief explanation of what is being accomplished among the Mexicans here.

Mrs. H. W. Guthrie, chairman of the Americanization committee, gave a report of the party that took place at her home for members of the Adult class in Americanization recently. The party was given by members of her committee.

During the social hour that followed, dainty refreshments were served by Mrs. Robbins and her daughter, Miss Doris Robbins, who assisted her mother as hostess.

Ladd's Bid Farewell to Friends at Pretty Party

Mr. and Mrs. Earl P. Ladd, 1905 West Washington avenue, were hosts to a group of intimate friends recently, whom they entertained prior to leaving for their new ranch home at Tulare. Games were enjoyed on the lovely lawn and afterward bunko was played.

First prize at the game was awarded to Miss Helen Hendricks, while Miss Marlen Dunn was consoled. Delicious refreshments were served.

Those who were present included Mr. and Mrs. Benton Hendricks and daughters, Helen, Martha and Betty Jean, of Tustin; Miss Velda Frazier, Miss Leah Kirker, Marion Dunn, Hubert Hall, Tom Scudder, George Lawrence and Edward Terrill, A. M. Ladd, Mr. and Mrs. Vivian Ladd and the host and hostess, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Ladd and Dorothy Elinor, Marybelle and Oliver Ladd.

New Swimming Class To Start Soon

Now is the time to prepare for summer sports according to Miss Nancy Elder, Y. W. C. A. secretary, who has announced the opening of a new swimming class for Tuesday night, March 12, at 7:30 o'clock.

In California where the beaches are so easily reached and where there are countless rounds of swimming parties it is very important that one knows how to swim, Miss Elder stated.

The class will be under the direction of Miss Martha McPeak and it will be limited to a membership of 15. However, at least 10 girls will have to sign up for the class before it will be organized.

Seattle Folk Honored At Attractive Dinner

Mr. and Mrs. R. R. Waffle of Seattle who have come to Santa Ana to make their home in the future, were complimented in charming fashion Saturday night when Mr. Waffle's brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Mark Lacy, and Mr. and Mrs. Otto Haan entertained with a dinner bridge at the Lacy home on South Broadway.

Crystal bowls, overflowing with sweet peas in the glowing pastel tints of early spring were used to center each of the small tables where the dinner was served. Adding a lovely touch to each bouquet was the leaf of maidenhair fern that recalled the sweeping green of California hills in the springtime. The same gay colors were carried out in the dainty nut cups, place cards and tallies.

A happy evening of cards followed the dinner and at a late hour scores were added, showing Mr. and Mrs. Charles Kendall as high with Mr. and Mrs. Howard Timmons, second high. They received handsome gifts as awards as did Mr. and Mrs. Waffle, guests of honor.

A pleasing feature of the awarding of the prizes was the presentation of a dainty gift to Mrs. J. K. Hermon, who is planning to leave in the near future for an interesting trip abroad.

Wrycende Maegden Club Enjoys Visit to Art Gallery

Today members of the Wrycende Maegden club of the Y. W. C. A. are recalling the happy hours they spent Saturday afternoon in inspecting the many treasures in the Huntington Art Gallery and library at San Marino.

Twenty-five girls made the trip to the library and following an afternoon there they returned to San Gabriel where they enjoyed a Spanish supper at the settlement house there. The house is under the direction of Miss Phyllis White, formerly secretary of the First Presbyterian church of this city.

Those who made the trip included Miss Nancy Elder, Y. W. C. A. secretary, Miss Lydia Mohr, Miss Ruth Potter, Miss Ruth Morten, Miss Dorothy Beckman, Miss Amy Smith, Miss Carol Erskine, Miss Lena Bell Bryant, Mrs. Charles Woodfill, Miss Louise Bryant, Miss Dorothy Dresser, Miss Hattie Bell Wall, Miss Blanche Yokum, Miss Mabel Pruitt, Miss Genevieve Fisher, Miss Monte Currie, Miss Marian Smith, Miss Lins Dunn, Miss Vera Morrison, Miss Beulah Dudgeon, Miss Dorothy Thurston, Miss Adele Lutz, Miss Henrietta Lykke.

Former Chemistry Class Visits Forest Home

Happy incidents connected with their days together in the chemistry laboratory of the junior college during the year 1927-28 were again revived Saturday when members of the former chemistry class journeyed to Forest Home to enjoy the winter sports at the invitation of their former teacher, Miss Etta Mae Conkle.

On arriving at the mountain resort, the students engaged in heated snowball fights which added great merriment to the party. A hike to the falls filled the morning with many lively incidents. At the noon hour, the party again returned to the camp to enjoy a sumptuous dinner.

Members of the party included Miss Grace Pritchard, Miss Justina Palmer, Miss Helen O'Brien, Miss Elizabeth Mateer, Leonard Morris, Rex Brown, James Snow, Robert Lowry, Homer Humphrey, Arthur Stein and Harold Beckman and Miss Eleanor Tunununer.

The class will be under the direction of Miss Martha McPeak and it will be limited to a membership of 15. However, at least 10 girls will have to sign up for the class before it will be organized.

Annual Cantando Club Banquet Is Planned

Friends of the Cantando club of Santa Ana are looking forward with interest to Friday night's second annual banquet of the organization that is to be held at St. Ann's Inn.

Plans for the affair have been made by a committee under the direction of Elmer E. Heidt, secretary of the organization, who has announced that a special entertainment will be presented during the dinner hour with dancing and cards to follow.

This year's banquet is expected to be larger than last year's when more than 200 associate and active members, friends and guests gathered for the occasion.

Marriage In Glendale Surprises Friends In Santa Ana

Coming as a complete surprise to their friends in this county was the marriage of Miss Cleo Layne of La Habra and Joseph Franklin Ellis of Los Angeles that took place at the Little Church of Flowers at Glendale Thursday evening.

The impressive service was held at 6:30 o'clock with the Rev. C. C. Root of Anaheim conducting the double ring ceremony. M. B. Simmons of Los Angeles sang, "My Heart is a Haven," accompanied by the piano by Mrs. Simmons.

During the ceremony a violin solo "Poet and Peasant" was played softly by J. Breckenridge Ellis, author and writer, accompanied at the piano by Mrs. H. J. Livingston who played Lohengrin as processional and Mendelssohn's march as recessional.

The bride, gowned in blue georgette with harmonizing accessories was given in marriage by her stepfather, G. L. Gordon. She carried a shower bouquet of yellow opelia roses and lilies of the valley. She was accompanied by Miss Lulu Threlkeld in a rose beige georgette gown with pleated skirt who carried an arm bouquet of deep pink Brar Cliff roses.

W. E. Barnore of Los Angeles assisted the groom as best man and G. B. Gordon, brother of the bride, acted as usher. Fifty guests and relatives of the young couple witnessed the ceremony.

The newly-weds will make their home in Huntington Park following a brief honeymoon. The bride, who has made her home in La Habra for a number of years, was an active worker in the Christian church and has held the position of book-keeper at the Wilson Furniture store here for several years.

J. C. Students Enjoy Treasure Hunt at County Park

A plotous journey through the trees and over the hills of Orange County park characterized the anticipated treasure hunt of the Santa Ana junior college when the freshman class of the college entertained the sophomore class.

The two happy individuals rewarded for their exceptional ability in finding hidden stations which were located in all parts of the park were Miss Marian Bruner and Bob Chapman. On returning to the central station, Miss Bruner received a box of stationery and Bob Chapman a silk scarf.

Following the excitement of the hunt, the many students gathered for the affair adjourned to the pavilion where dancing ensued. Refreshments were served by the committee in charge. Those arranging for the hunt were Wylie Carlyle, Delmar Brown, Fred Humiston, Ed Adams, Florence Brownridge, Clara Kate Owens, Dorothy Harmon, Dorothy Diehl, Marcia Huber.

Fourth Birthday Is Marked By Happy Celebration

The fourth birthday anniversary of little Miss Patricia Stocking, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Virgil C. Stocking of Anaheim, was delightfully celebrated with a dinner at the home of her parents.

A color scheme of pink and white was carried out in decorations and a birthday cake with four pink candles was the center of attraction. Miss Patricia received many pretty gifts.

Those present for the happy occasion beside her parents and little sister, Marilyn, were her grandmother, Mrs. A. E. Stocking, Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Clayton and Mrs. Sombre of Washington, who are spending the winter in Southern California, and Miss L. M. Heterbrink.

Santa Ana Folk Respond To Lure of Desert In Spring

Among Santa Anans responding to the lure of the early-spring desert were Mr. and Mrs. T. F. Cruzen of 1119 South Flower street, who with their house-guests, Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Holliday and Miss A. B. Cruzen of Waverly, Mo., together with Mr. and Mrs. Bosworth and Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Cruzen of Tustin, are at present enjoying a week of wandering through Coachella and Imperial valleys.

Mr. and Mrs. Holliday and Miss Cruzen have been spending the winter months with their Santa Ana and Tustin relatives and many such outings as the present one, have been arranged for their pleasure. On the present trip, they have visited the blooming orchards of Beaumont and Banning, sampled the dates of Indio, and yesterday visited Fish Springs near the Salton Sea, finding its rock garden of strange geological formations, its ancient Indian relics and fossils, extremely interesting. They will be gone another week before returning to their homes here and in Tustin.

ANN MEREDITH'S MIXING BOWL

Tasty Soup For a Lenten Menu

The season of Lent serves a two-fold purpose in allowing one ample time for spiritual discipline and the physical over-hauling that follows the simple diet prescribed for this season.

Social activities cease and with them the rich luncheons and supper parties. Early hours and long walks become the order of the day.

The soup talked of today is especially good for the season, and those who refrain from meat will find this an agreeable addition to the menu.

TODAY'S RECIPE LENTEN VEGETABLE SOUP

1 small head of celery
1 turnip, diced
3 small carrots, diced
1 teaspoon minced parsley
4 tablespoons butter
4 tablespoons pearl barley
1-quart hot water
Salt and pepper

Long and slow cooking is required for this soup. To have it with all its flavor it should be served as soon as done... it isn't a soup which warms up successfully.

After washing the barley through several waters let it soak in the quart of warm water for an hour; place it over the flame to heat and after cooking it for an hour put in the finely diced vegetables and the butter, cover and just barely simmer until the barley is soft—about 2-3 hours.

Seasonings are added to this type of soup just before serving. The flavor seems more delicate when this caution is followed.

When seasoning the soup enough hot water should be added to make a full quart of liquid; this quantity serves four and the individual calorie total is 160 each.

Crackers sprinkled thickly with cheese and toasted are delicious with this soup. In this way the soup has its quota of PROTEIN to offset the energy calories supplied by the butter in the soup.

Are you interested in correcting overweight? If so, send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to this department and a copy of the current leaflet, OVERWEIGHT, ITS CAUSE AND CURE, will be sent to you.

Much information is condensed in this interesting leaflet and menus are suggested to correct overweight.

The dessert for TOMORROW will be Date Cream Pie, a delectable concoction.

ANN MEREDITH.

The WOMAN'S DAY

by ALLENE SUMNER

Since not a few people are interested in the institution called marriage, not a few may also be interested in a fairly sprightly new book called "Marriage in the Modern Manner," by Ira S. Wylie and Mary Day Winn. The following extracts may interest, entertain or instruct:

The one-man-for-one-woman theory is answered thus:

"Nature has endowed practically all amount of appeal for the other sex, like the pull between two electrically charged magnetic coils; as in the case of magnets, propinquity does the rest."

"Sometimes sex-appeal works with explosive suddenness, producing 'love at first sight.' This form of love is extremely unstable. If Romeo and Juliet had not died, they would probably have been separated within a year. They were the victims of a love mirage."

THE "WHY" OF MARRIAGE

The summary of why people marry may interest you:

"First, of course, is romantic love, next is the desire for companionship, for a sense of belonging to someone, for the expansion of life which comes when one lives through and for another, rather than in a limited world revolving only around one's own needs and desires."

And here's an idea! When Mr. Smith on your street who has been a widower for less than a year suddenly outrages your sense of decency by taking unto himself a bride, pray remember this:

The widower's traditional haste to wed again is one of the highest compliments paid to marriage. It is not a criticism of first wives, but an endorsement. The man who has been happy, contented and emotionally satisfied in his first marriage is much more likely to remarry at an early date than the man who has considered his marriage a failure and who has gradually grown away from his wife and his home."

ABOUT WIDOWS

And also, that secret of the widow's popularity!

"Just as great as the widow's haste to marry is that of the widow, and statistics bear out the popular idea that she can marry almost any man she chooses, and on almost any terms. The reasons for the popularity of widows are many. In the first place, they bear the seal of another man's approval. In the second, they are experienced and understanding, and in the third, they are emotionally receptive."

The authors take a gentle little wallop at those very occasional college student questionnaires when young men insist that they will marry girls who have health, moral character, ability and who put beauty and wealth at the end of the list. The authors note that what such college boys do in practice when it comes to picking wives is quite another matter.

The problem of the wage-earning wife gets a chapter with nothing especially new said. But insistence that the wage-earning wife who is pooling her earnings for home upkeep should have no more responsibility with the housework than the wage-earning husband cannot be said too often.

The authors hand laurels to those husbands who, reared in the tradition that man is the home provider, are able to sit calmly by and see their wives labor outside the home.

"The husband whose wife is in business and who has happily adjusted himself to this fact without resenting it, even if she earns more than he, is apt to be more of a real man, more of an upstanding, self-contained person, than any champion of the boxing ring."

"He may not have won a mastery of muscle, but he has won mastery of far more subtle and formidable powers—instinct and tradition. His is the conquest of mind over custom, and by such heroes has civilization been made."

Daily Lenten Thought

BY WM. E. GILROY, D.D., Editor of The Congregationalist

There are things in life of which we should never let go no matter what it costs to hold on. Paul admonished the Christians of his day to "hold fast that which is good."

There is a story of Rudyard Kipling to the effect that when he was a boy of 12 he was on an ocean trip with his father, Lockwood Kipling, the artist. The captain of the ship came up to the elder Kipling in great consternation and said: "Mr. Kipling, Mr. Kipling, your boy has climbed up onto the yardarm, and if he lets go he will be drowned."

Mr. Kipling did not seem greatly perturbed. He replied simply: "But he won't let go." The man who would be truly Christian must have that sort of tenacity.

But if a man is to hold the things that are good in life, he must be upheld himself, and he must have laid hold of something stronger than himself. Hence the strongest appeal that can be made to men is to lay hold on Christ. We think of him as an anchor or a rock—a great support, sure and steadfast, near at hand in every emergency to hold us up and to give us power to hold to all in life that is good.

Household Suggestions

RAG RUGS

Wash rag rugs before they are badly soiled. Shake first, then either douse up and down in warm suds, or, if small, lay flat on the floor or a table and scrub with a brush. Turn the hose on them for rinsing and never wring.

NEW IVY STAND

A colorful, charming addition to any living room is a new wrought-iron ivy stand like a shepherd's crook, one of its three pots of ivy hanging from the loop. The three pots are old rose, yellow and lavender.

PAINTED CLOCK

Spring is a good time to color up the kitchen. An old aluminum clock can be painted to look pristine new and decidedly like spring. Hung by a colored cord it will be a new asset to kitchen beauty.

At the Theatres

WEST COAST-WALKER

George Bancroft in "The Wolf of Wall Street." A Paramount Picture

As "The Wolf," Bancroft is able to wrest a fortune from his dabbling in stocks, although his true wolfish tendencies develop only after he has discovered the fact that his wife has turned to another for the love and companionship he fails to give her. Then he turns all his magnificent energy to wrecking his rival in every investment the latter undertakes.

The process by which he wrecks his revenge, gives a powerful and dramatic story to which Bancroft and Baclanova do full justice, and the fact that the picture is one of the famous "all-talking" films which the Walker theater is bringing to the city, heightens the general interest.

The Walker theater yesterday introduced a guest conductor in the person of Mannie Nathan, who will be present at tonight's production also. Among the various acts presented by him to the accompaniment of much hilarity, none was more popular than the "Frolic Four" of the Fanchon and Marco "Varieties."

Sherry O'Day and Myra Leach ran, then a close second, however, for their dancing was a most enjoyable part of the program. John and Mary Mason's feature was clever—indeed the entire bill, including the comedy, news reels, etc., made excellent entertainment which will be repeated tonight.

YOST BROADWAY

Opening yesterday at the Yost Broadway theater where it will be the attraction up to and including Wednesday, was the screen version of a popular Rupert Hughes story, "The Girl on the Barge," a story of the Erie canal, interpreted by such artists as Jean Hersholt, Sally O'Neill and Malcolm McGregor.

Scientifically, the picture is quite as interesting as it is from the standpoint of acting. The famous old Erie canal was supposed to be the setting, so the picture was filmed on a companion canal, the Champlain in upper New York, where the players found the necessary atmosphere.

The story is a dramatic one, whose development allows for many different moods, including some very funny situations. The ending brings its own surprise to the play-goer, adding to the interest inspired by the picture at its first showing here yesterday. Talking sequences are an outstanding feature also.

The new Broadway Revue adds to the general attraction of the bill and has an unusual variety. Chuck Calahan and "Pee Wee" Elmo are a pair of amusing colored comedians warranted to drive the blues away. The "Dance Tactics" of a quartet of maids and men seemed to meet with unusual appreciation at yesterday's shows, and their burlesque adagio was very cleverly done indeed.

"A Story in Song" is the way in which Bruneau and Anderson are billed, and their semiclassical program is an unusual one. Albert and Lee's "Spectacular Novelty" presents some bright features, as does "By the Sea" with Ed Lavine, Dora Maughan, "Song Impressions" and Movietone News completes the entertainment.

BUENA PARK

BUENA PARK, March 4.—Two were raised to the third degree of Masonry in the Masonic temple Thursday night. A banquet was served and a past masters' meeting held. About 20 were present from Long Beach.

Millan Oil company banquet served to some 80 in St. Ann's Inn Thursday night.

Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Warren attended the Ocasio Country club bridge dinner Thursday night. Ninety-two from various Orange county points attended.

C. H. Story opened a modern grocery in the Jaynes building Friday.

The Whittier Glee club gave an excellent concert in the school auditorium Thursday night. A large number of music lovers attended.

A THREE DAYS' COUGH IS YOUR DANGER SIGNAL

Coughs from colds may lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for coughs from colds and bronchial irritations. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of coughs from colds, bronchitis and minor forms of bronchial irritations, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

Fruits and vegetables are bearers of health

Eat them, cooked and raw, each day

ONE of the country's leading food scientists was asked what rule he could give for healthy eating. "This would be my first rule," he said. "Eat at least one raw salad (vegetable) and at least one raw fruit each day. In addition to that, eat at least one cooked vegetable and one cooked fruit each day. Rotate the fruits and vegetables with season, price and taste."

He went on immediately to emphasize the value of sugar in making fruits and vegetables palatable and enjoyable. People no longer need feel that a meal has to be unenjoyable in order to be healthful. In fact, the opposite is true. It is of great importance to the health of the body to enjoy the right foods as well as to eat them. And sugar is nature's most perfect flavor, the adder of zest and pleasure to eating. Many of the most healthful fruits, for example, would be almost uneatable without sugar. Adding sugar makes the harsh fruit acids delightful to the taste. It does not injure or change in any way the beneficial health qualities of the fruits. And the good cook knows that nearly every vegetable has its flavor improved when sugar is used in cooking.

Successful cookery and health-giving diets revolve around sugar. Sugar in the kitchen and on the table can be so useful in promoting health and good digestion. What, for example, is so enjoyable and refreshing as fresh grapefruit, sweetened to taste? It is important to eat fruits and vegetables daily and to enjoy them. The Sugar Institute.

THE TINYMITES

STORY BY NAL COCHRAN—PICTURES BY KNICK

(READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE)

The Oak Tree stood and watched a while. The Tinymites' antics made him smile. They ran around at playing tag until they grew tired out. "Oh, goodness me, let's sit and rest," said Clowzy, "we have done our best to get a lot of exercise." The tree began to shout.

"Real exercise is fine," it said. "But sometimes little tots are led to overdoing things like that. I think you've had enough. I know you're tired as tired can be. Why sure, I know it 'cause I see that every single one of you can't help but pant and puff."

The Tinymites then flopped to the ground. The Oak Tree calmly looked around and said, "I'll tell you 'bout myself. It may be nothing new, but I grew here to furnish shade and from me lumber will be made. You may think this is queer, but from a small acorn I grew."

And there the Oak Tree's story stopped. To everybody's surprise it hopped up on two funny, clumsy legs and waddled down the hill. "Good-bye," cried Coppy. "Come again. We hope to see you now and then." And Mister Oak Tree turned and said, "Oh, thank you! Sure I will."

"Ah, ha," cried Clowzy, "what I see, I must admit, looks good to me. That tree ahead's a cherry tree. Oh, what a wondrous treat. Let's run right up and shake it hard and luscious cherries 'twill discard. I know that we're all hungry. 'We can have this food to eat."

Soon, when they shook, the Tinymites found that cherries dropped down to the ground. And then they got a big surprise that thrilled each Tinymite. As every cherry reached the earth, 'twould jump and run for all 'twas worth. The Tinymites didn't eat a one. They all ran out of sight.

Discussion of the "New Cabinet" and "Unsolved Problems Confronting the New Administration" are the timely subjects scheduled for the March 5 Voters' Service program to be broadcast tomorrow, the day after President-elect Hoover takes office. The program will be radioed at 4 o'clock (Pacific standard time) under the joint sponsorship of the National League of Women Voters and the National Broadcasting company. Eighteen stations will carry this program, including KPO, San Francisco, and KGO, Oakland.

Julian S. Mason, editor of the New York Post and one of the leading editorial executives in the country, is to discuss the "New Cabinet." Mason has had wide experience and is regarded as an able interpreter of political events. Before becoming editor-in-chief of the New York Evening Post, in 1926, Mason had been managing editor of the New York Herald-Tribune. He served in this post for more than four years. Chicago newspaper work was his main interest prior to entering New York newspaper circles in 1922. For several years he had been managing editor of the Chicago Post.

"Unsolved Problems Confronting the New Administration" will be the subject of the second talk by Charles G. Ross, chief Washington correspondent of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch. This will be one of Mr. Ross' fortnightly talks in the Voters' Service programs.

Mozart's Overture to "The Magic Flute," his last great work, opens the program. Following this orchestral number Mrs. Alda will be heard in the touchingly beautiful

"Ave Maria" from Verdi's "Otello"

a prayer sung in one of the most inspired moments of the opera.

A group of songs in English will include Cadman's "From the Land of the Sky Blue Water" and Frank

Le Forge's "Song of the Open."

J. E. SHANNON CONCLUDES HIS REVIVAL MEET

The last message of Evangelist

J. E. Shannon at the First United Brethren church in the series of revival meetings, was on the subject of "Sin." The sermon, in part, follows:

"Jesus never defined sin abstractly, but always viewed and

tations. The self-righteous Pharisee, the pious priest and Levite, the pitiless servant were the typical embodiments of sin. He contrasted sin with goodness. Sin is the using of the gifts of God against

God. It is walking in darkness rather than in light. The loss of man's true self is the sin from which

Jesus came to save us. Sin is not human but devilish. He seeks to save us from that which is devil-ish and make us normally human.

"Sin is that horrible thing which divides households, ruins homes, blasts characters, digs the graves of unhappy youths and drive parents with sorrow to their graves.

Sin is discord in the world which was divinely attuned to harmony, rupture in a world which was made for unity; a shadow which obscures to human eyes the very purposes of the Eternal and spreads its fatal blight over all the relations of life, and darkens

the brightest dreams of human happiness and achievement.

"In the book of Proverbs, chapter 14:9 we read that fools make a mock of Sin. Only a fool would mock at Sin. It has left its dark mark or blot on all the pages of history. It is our direst foe for when it is finished it bringeth forth death. It has broken hearts since the first heart began to beat.

It has caused eyes to overflow with tears since the first eye was opened. It has caused mothers to weep since the first mother loved.

"Sin widens and fixes the gulf between a man and his God and between a man and his holy friends. Sin gives us a wrong horizon in life because attitudes determine horizons and sin drags down from the high altitudes of character to the depths of degradation and shame."

THE NEW METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH EDIFICE

The dedicatory services for the great addition to the Santa Ana First Methodist church took place yesterday morning. It was a happy day toward which more than a thousand members of this society have been looking forward with great anticipation and working with zeal and sacrifice. It is a far cry from preaching in the field and to the prisoners of Newgate, as the founder of Methodism, John Wesley, was forced to do in order to have a place to propound the Gospel as he believed it, to this elegant edifice for Gospel teaching and Christian fellowship.

We are glad we have been called upon to record the completion of various additional buildings in Santa Ana. The vision which inspired them, the development of our city, the enterprise of the citizens and the faith in the future which insured their erection have been praiseworthy and impressive. But we believe that people generally will agree that the building of an edifice that cost a hundred thousand dollars, dedicated not to profit, not to commerce, not to industrial life, but to the moral and spiritual training of the people is a more significant evidence of enterprise, of faith, and of vision than any structure erected with the hope of financial return.

An ample and fine church, in a beautiful location, in a beautiful city is constantly having its effect, as a silent preacher, upon the thousands who will view it. The aesthetic in their lives will be developed. Beauty itself suggests the Creator and His love. It impresses one with the thought that behind it there are those who are endeavoring to carry out the will of the Divine, who are fighting to conquer the self of life, who are willing to give their energy and their time and their substance to aid in the building of the moral and spiritual fibre of the men and women of the community. It raises the standard of thought and purpose in the city itself.

As visitors wander about the city and see the church edifices which have been erected and have been dedicated to God for the purpose of bringing the Kingdom of Heaven here on earth they certainly must be impressed that the city of Santa Ana, in establishing these places of worship, of communion and prayer at the heart and throughout the city, desire to emphasize the importance of higher authority and the supreme guidance in our lives.

We can imagine John Wesley standing before this beautiful Methodist structure and as he did so his memory would go back in reverie. He remembers the apparently insignificant beginning of his preaching to the poor and the outcast. He thinks of them and of the vicissitudes in his long and active life. He recalls the formation of the Holy Club at Oxford. He thinks then of his own dedication to the ministry. He reviews his missionary labors in Georgia. He then recalls the dark hours of his life when he was seeking for a greater light and a fuller conversion and finally finding it among the Moravians. His bosom heaves as he thinks of the consecration of his life then to the service of the millions. He thanks God for the motto that he took for himself and which has become the motto of his church, "I live to make my own church a power in the world, and I live to aid every other church that exalts my Christ." And finally, we can see him viewing in his imagination the millions of communicants in this denomination and the thousands of churches which are typified by this one. And then for the part he was able to play in the development of that great force which has been so meaningful for our civilization, he would be filled with gratitude, his eyes would suffuse with tears, and we can almost hear him say, "What Hath God Wrought!"

The citizens of Santa Ana, regardless of denominational lines or religious beliefs, are subject to congratulation by reason of the fact that another building is dedicated to the service of men and women and consecrated to the Ruler of the Universe. May the power that goes forth from the people who gather within its portals increase in richness and volume as the years pass on is the wish, we are confident, of every person in our city.

President Coolidge, during his administration, has posed with 957 delegations on the White House grounds. Guess about the only organizations not included in that number are some of the Chicago business groups.

A UNIQUE COINCIDENCE

When Mr. Coolidge rode along Pennsylvania avenue today with the President-elect on the way to his inauguration, it was only the third time for over fifty years that a Republican president succeeds a Republican president in the regular inauguration ceremony. Only Garfield and Taft were ushered into their high office by a president of their own party. Johnson and Arthur and Roosevelt and Coolidge became president through the death of their predecessors. The two terms of President Cleveland, with an intermission of four years, and the two terms of President Wilson, together with the death in office of four presidents, has produced this unique coincidence.

An incident like this serves to indicate how many contingencies arise in presidential succession. Even an occasional change in party succession, together with the contingency of death, changes governmental policies to such a marked degree as to sometimes alter the whole structure of government and the course of history. Mr. Roosevelt's succession marked an entire change of front of administration policies. The same was true with the succession of Andrew Johnson, and to lesser extent with Chester A. Arthur. In all these cases the change was quite as radical as if a member of the opposition party had succeeded to the office. In the case of Mr. Coolidge, the change was not so great, except that the morale of the government experienced a tremendous uplift through that succession.

THE WORLD HAS A HEART

The story of little Billy Newhart of Bellaire, O., is the sort of thing that restores one's faith in humanity.

Billy, you remember, is the lad whose bones are so brittle that he's all the time fracturing them. He has spent eight of his 12 years in bed; about his only diversion is reading post-cards that friends send him.

The newspapers recently printed a little story about him. What happened? Newspaper readers, all over the country, took the trouble to write him. To date he has received approximately 40,000 letters, and enough toys to last him a lifetime. There are, after all, a lot of kindly people in the world.

And, best of all, Billy isn't spoiled by it. He won't pose for pictures because, he says, "folks would think I was trying to get some more gifts." He is behaving himself under somewhat trying circumstances as well as Lindbergh did.

DETROIT'S ACCIDENT CAMPAIGN

The way in which traffic fatalities can be materially cut down if police and court authorities really put their minds to it is evidenced by what has been done in Detroit.

At the beginning of 1928, Detroit launched an intensive campaign to reduce accidents. It put on extra police, had motorcycle officers patrol all streets regularly, did away with light sentences in the courts and, with the backing of the newspapers, tried to educate driver and pedestrian to the importance of what was being tried.

The result? Detroit's traffic deaths in 1928 were 20 per cent under the total of 1927. Yet in the nation as a whole the total was two per cent higher than in the preceding year.

It takes effort and it costs money, of course. But our traffic casualty list is a shame, and any remedy that produces results is a good one. Other cities might do well to copy Detroit.

TURNING TOWARD ASIA

The emergence of the United States as a great Asiatic power was described in a recent number of Review of Reviews by Nicholas Roosevelt, student of far eastern affairs.

In the future, says Roosevelt, the United States will play the leading part in a new world in which Canada, Japan, China, Australia, New Zealand and the Philippines will form a trading community unparalleled in wealth and opportunity.

Our trade across the Pacific, he points out, has grown from $283,000,000 in 1900 to $2,064,000,000 in 1927, and is still going up.

There is no question but that tremendous opportunities are emerging on our west coast. Some huge new fortunes will be built by the Americans who see them ahead of their fellows.

The High Cost of Penmanship

Christian Science Monitor

The disconcerting assertion that the bad handwriting of shop assistants is responsible for the annual loss, by the retail trade of England, of thousands of pounds, which was recently made by a manager of one of the largest stores in London in an address to schoolboys, deserves, in spite of its well-intentioned exaggeration, serious attention. The problem of legibility, certain schoolmasters even believe, can only be solved by providing a new type of written letter, approximating in shape to the printed one, which would be less amenable to the interlarding chaos of loops and flourishes.

In Turkey, indeed, where the ornate Arabic has only a short while ago been abolished in favor of the simpler Western script, the tendency to over-emphasize the florid side of the Roman letter, as commonly written at present, not altogether due to the zeal for the Ghazal's latest reform, has caused dismay to many a teacher, who is frequently reported to be at a loss to decipher the efforts of his most promising pupils. It is doubtful, however, whether, had the Turks adopted the so-called "print-script," their conscientiousness in tracing, and even improving on, the involutions of a letter so fundamentally foreign to the Orient would have made their writing very much more legible.

Deplorable and even wasteful as illegibility may become if practiced to excess, it would be uncharitable to condemn it outright; for there is a charm in a hieroglyphic which few can resist. Indeed, of all the cunning devices invented by men to outwit their fellows, none has excited keener curiosity than a secret script or code. From Dickens to O. Henry, and even earlier, as Friday's footprint testifies, the puzzling incision, the cryptic telegram, and the obscurities of detective lore have played their part in enhancing the reader's suspense and in exciting his desire for solving the apparently unsolvable. Yet, although such subtleties are obviously only in the power of superior intelligence, it has always been possible for anyone to indulge in a similar kind of sport by introducing a strain of originality in his handwriting. It seems hardly credible that any new script, however fool-proof its legibility, will obliterate what has been designed as "character" in handwriting. It may be possible as "character" in handwriting. It may be possible as "character" in handwriting. It may be possible as "character" in handwriting.

For Rent Sign Stirs Old Warwick's Ghost

San Francisco Chronicle

Warwick castle is to let—so advertised in the English papers like a flat in Bloomsbury, a villa at Chipping Norton or lodgings at Margate. What a stirring there must be among the fine old ghosts of the ancient pile! What thinks Alfred's daughter, Ethelfleda, the warlike Queen of the Mercians, who built the first rude fortress as a strong place against the Danes? What are the feelings of the Conqueror's vassal, Henry of Newburgh, who raised a Norman keep on Ethelfleda's Saxon foundations, and of the Beauchamps, who succeeded and became the great Earls of Warwick? And Piers Gaveston, the Gascon fool, haunting the walls where the barons of Edward I tried and condemned him to death for his arrogance?

Warwick was a base for Henry Bolingbroke's campaign against Owen Glendower, who could "call the spirits from the vasty deep." Could he but call them now, and would they come, what shadowy warriors and dames would fill the courts and keep and the tower of the legendary Guy—Beauchamps and Nevilles and Percys and Greylives and the Kingmaker himself!

What a chance for a modern who fancies he has power over the spirits! Warwick is to let! If he has the price he can there surround himself with as choice a collection of spooks as ever rattled a chain or squeaked behind an arras.

More Truth Than Poetry

PERMANENT GUESTS

When good folk, both high and humble
Back in history's earliest time
Now and then began to grumble
At the prevalence of crime.
"We admit," replied the rulers,
"That these criminals are tough,
But they'll all be in the coolers
If you give us time enough."

From the time Tiglath-pileser
In Assyria held his sway
Down through Caius Julius Caesar
To our bosses of today,
Men who hold the high positions
Have denounced the miscreant's game
But the criminal conditions
Seem to be about the same.

Down in Ur the population
Often loudly used to cry
To the town administration
That their taxes were too high,
And the rulers, sorely goaded
Said: "The taxes are severe,
And you're early overloaded
But we'll cut them down next year."

Since the very earliest village
Was scooped out of some high bluff
Certain folks have lived by pillage
And the taxes have been tough.
While the world rolls on its axis
Which may be a long, long time,
We shall still pay too high taxes
And we'll not get rid of crime.

ALWAYS EFFICIENT

It is characteristic of the new President that he means to get Congress to work as soon as he gets settled in his job.

By Dr. Frank Crane

INAUGURATION DAY

Inauguration day is the day when the new President of the United States takes his office.

When a new king is proclaimed in one of the old countries they usually have fireworks, public dances and feasting. Just why the public is supposed to go into conniptions of joy when a new man assumes the job of ruling it is hard to see.

Cannon are not fired and church bells are not rung when there is a new head to an automobile company or a new man is inducted into the office of president of a steel corporation.

In this country the typical inauguration is typified by the act of Thomas Jefferson, who is said to have hitched his horse to a post and gone in to take his place at the White House desk. There is no disposition to minimize the office of Chief Executive of a great country. The occasion of his assuming office is of nation-wide significance. He has been chosen by the majority of ballots of a free people and everybody is interested.

But there is no sort of divinity controlling the matter. He does not consider himself, probably, as chosen by the decrees of heaven, but rather as selected by the suffrages of his fellow citizens.

He is there to perform certain duties clearly stipulated in the Constitution. He is not so much the ruler of a people as their servant.

The more he realizes this and the more circumspectly he walks before the Lord and the people, the better it is for him. Any autocratic or bombastic notions that he may have acquired will get in his way. He needs most of all to retain his humility, his sense of responsibility and his common sense.

The people are inclined, on the whole, to construe his actions favorably, and while he cannot escape carping criticism it does not have much influence upon general public opinion. He may rest assured that he takes his seat of office with the good will of the majority of the citizens. They are sincerely hoping that he will discharge his duties faithfully and conscientiously, and the more he consults his own notions of right and wrong and acts forthrightly and honestly the better he will please his constituents.

It is better to have the good will and the free choice of his subjects than to depend upon the glories of tradition or the amount of bombast and fireworks that accompany his inauguration.

Thoughts On Modern Life

By Glenn Frank

A NATION'S INAUGURAL

Today the American Republic installs a new President. It is a custom as old as the nation that the president-elect shall, on the day he takes office, deliver an inaugural address. This is one of the formalities of the American political procedure, and, in politics as in religion, it is difficult to keep ritual real.

It might make inauguration day a more vital date if, instead of the president's addressing the country, the country could address the president.

The average campaign is not a referendum on issues, for platform writers, with a weather eye on votes, touch the more ticklish issues gingerly. And so, after the votes have been counted, the country has still to speak its mind on the most vital issues. But the country has no way of speaking its mind that is as vivid and as attention-getting as a presidential inaugural address.

If it were possible for the American nation to address Mr. Hoover today instead of Mr. Hoover's addressing the nation, here are some elementary things I suspect it would like to say:

"We hope, Mr. Hoover, that you will reorganize the federal government in the interest of greater simplicity. We want greater efficiency. We want greater economy. But, even more than we want these, we want a government that is intelligible to us. It is a Chinese puzzle to us now. We want to be able to better follow its workings. We want responsibility located in a few strategic offices, so that we can better administer the stimulus of praise and swing the sword of blame when good or bad work is done. And we hope that you will take out of politics all those offices that are designed to provide the factbasis for our ever more technical civilization."

OUR CHILDREN

By ANGELO PATRI

SAVAGE CHILDREN

"That child eats like a savage." "Isn't it dreadful? Did you see him put his hands in his plate?" "Yes, and did you hear him suck his spoon?"

"And lie down on the table. Really, I could hardly sit at the table. Wouldn't you think that SOMEBODY would have taught him better by this time? He must be nine!"

"O, all of that. But he's a mess at the table." "That's too bad. Nine years can behave at the table if he is taught early enough and constantly drilled. It does take a lot of teaching and day by day practice, but it is done."

Set the table with care so that he learns to use his knife and fork and spoon. His napkin is to be used. His glass is to be set in the right place and to be used properly. No gulping, no long drink to the bottom of the glass with a choking sigh at the close.

Elbows are to be off the table and close to the sides. Bread is to be broken off in small pieces, the size of one bite and buttered each time. No plastering. No flapping on the table and troweling with the knife.

Soup is to be eaten or drunk from the side of the spoon and no noise. Meat is to be cut a bit at a time, a small bit too, and chewed quietly. The dinner is to be eaten as a whole, not all the meat first, then all the potato, then all the carrot. A bit of meat, a taste of potato, a nibble of carrot.

No big mouthfuls. There is to be no gobbling. No hurry. No inquiries about the dessert.

There is to be no remark about what I like and what I don't like. A little of each thing on the table is to be eaten and that without comment.

No child is to reach across the table for anything. Each is to be assigned one dish which he is to serve or offer to serve to anyone wishing it after the first serving.

The children follow the lead of the conversation, as opportunity is offered them. A glance that includes them, a signal of the eye from the adult leading the table.

So, this date has been cheated of much of the prominence it was intended to have. It is the anniversary of great events which should have been.

HEREDITARY

"Women, in my opinion, are different than they used to be." "How's that?" "There's my daughter, for instance—she's taking up law, whereas her mother always lays it down."—Tit-Bits.

PLUMBER AGAIN

VERY SLOW PLUMBER: Oh, I remember your little boy, mum. 'E was in the infants' class when I went to do a job at the school some time ago.

EXASPERATED LADY: Indeed! And what class was he in when you'd finished?—Passing Show.

THAT'S JUST BAIT

MOTHER: George, bring baby in to have his dinner. LITTLE GEORGE: He doesn't need his dinner, mother. He has just eaten a worm.—Passing Show.

CHANCE TO GET EVEN

TRADESMAN: Now, look here, I've had enough of this. When are you going to settle this account. FUGLISTER: Afraid I can't do it at the moment, but I'll let you 'ave a course of instruction in boxing in exchange.—Passing Show.
